Committee Thresh Out Publicity Problems at Luncheon

$1,500 IS THE COST

Geo. Bentley Moyes Appropriation, Seconded by Dan Campbell

The advertising committee of the chamber of commerce met with the board of directors yesterday at lunch and threshed out the advertising and publicity problems facing that organization. The result of the meeting was the appropriation of $1500 to be used by the advertising committee in compiling and publishing a descriptive booklet of Glendale, which will be of value in drawing the attention of eastern people to this city. This appropriation was voted on a motion by Director Dan Campbell and seconded by George Bentley. The overhead expense of the organization was also discussed.

Matters surrounding the publication of the March issue of the Arrowhead, which was devoted to Glendale, were discussed and adjusted to the apparent satisfaction of both the directors and the advertising committee.

According to statements made by Lloyd Wilson, chairman of the advertising committee, several of the articles written for this issue of the magazine were so changed and rearranged as to be practically unrecognizable by the authors.

Mr. Wilson, at the beginning of the discussion, made the statement that this book had not been approved by the advertising committee. The statement by Mr. Wilson that articles written for the publication had been changed and rearranged to such extent that the authors did not recognize their own brain children was answered by E. F. Sanders, who said that he had called on Mr. Davis of the Union Pacific, who is director of publicity for that company, giving his opinion of the Glendale edition of the Arrowhead. A letter from Davis was read. This stated that the Glendale issue of the magazine had called out more additional copies after the original run than any previous issue of the publication. He said that the subject matter in the issue in question compared very favorably with the publication devoted to other cities in Southern California. Every article in the book was praised. The cuts were enumerated and termed comprehensive.

In conclusion Mr. Davis said that while he might have made some changes in the copy had he been editing it, the articles on the whole were very good.

Other letters, one from L. S. Gilham company, an advertising agency and another from Edwin M. Gore, publicity man of Los Angeles, were read. These letters also praised the issue. Excerpts from personal letters, in praise of the edition, were also read by Mr. Sanders.

Mr. Sanders stated that the story written by an expert, employed by Mr. Wilson, had been rearranged after it was turned over to the committee in charge of the publication and was the only one in the book that did not require some slight blue pencilling by the final editor. This story, while it was rearranged, utilized the same facts as the author had used in the original composition.

The advertising committee recommended that the chamber make an appropriation sufficient to allow the publication of a booklet made up of Glendale pictures and some reading matter.

Mr. Wilson stated that an appropriation is wanted to enable the committee to publish a book that can be mailed to eastern people and can also be placed in business houses here in Glendale, where the patrons of the stores can secure them and mail them to their friends and relatives. It was the belief of the committee that a book consisting of pictures and a smaller percentage of reading matter is the best medium for help.

W. L. Twining of the F. P. Newport company and also a member of the advertising committee, said he was not attending the meeting yesterday with the intention of getting into a fight. Last Monday he was asked to attend a meeting of the advertising committee and pass on some advertising. At that meeting he made the suggestion that the chamber of commerce get out a live, snappy book.

He said at the meeting on Tuesday that he did not intend his remarks as an attack on Secretary Rhoades and regretted that such meaning had been placed on them. "I said Tuesday and I say again, without criticizing Mr. Rhoades, if the overhead expense is too high, cut it off. If the work of the advertising committee is not satisfactory to the chamber of commerce, I, for one, want to quit," concluded Mr. Twining.

Secretary Rhoades said that since the reorganization of the Inspiration Is Key to Good Work and Happy Hours

Inspiration for a desire to work is more important than being taught how to work, declares James W. Foley in The Listening Post this evening. That the need in this work is dignity in labor, the proper spirit that glorifies it and a keen zest in whatever one may be doing, is the philosophical message which Mr. Foley brings to you.

A crank is never of any real service to humanity says Henry James in commenting on the germ enthusiast who insists that a great percentage of contagious disease is spread by the handshake. In his comment on the day's news, he speaks in humorous vein on the tragedy of Babe Ruth having a rival.

Della Stewart this evening cites that shirkers and impostors are dropped in this busy workaday world as soon as they are found out to be such. Besides these fascinating paragraphs there is John Pilgrim's article and Dr. Inge, dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in London alluding to him as one of the most significant figures in British life today.

The Eastern point of view as well as the editorial columns contain much of a valuable nature.

PATTON BROTHERS OPEN AFTERNOON CHAUTAUQUA

Evening Performance to Be Junior Program; Imrie to Lecture

The program of this afternoon's Chautauqua will be a wonderful offering of musical entertainment by the Patton Brothers trio, who are three unique artists. The admission will be 40 cents.

The evening performance will open at 8 o'clock, the junior Chautauqua, at which the Patton Brothers will give the prelude, and at 8:30, Norman Allan Imrie will give the lecture, "Working Together for Billions," teaching the doctrine that "friendships are better than battleships."

The concert for Sunday will open at 2:30 with the Oceanic Quintet, which has a record of continuous success under five flags on three continents. Opie Read will deliver his address in the afternoon, instead of evening.

Monday will open with the Watteau girls in the afternoon, the junior Chautauqua, Cappy Ricks of Saturday Evening Post fame. Both are fun-making numbers.

These entertainments are priced differently for the single performance, none being more than 75 cents, except the Monday evening performance, which will be $1. Unless the sale of the single tickets increases, it is possible that the guarantors of the entertainment will face a deficit.

An evening of popular classics given with the voice of grand opera, accompanied by the artistry of a trio of real musicians, was the Chautauqua offering last night, which was greatly appreciated by an almost capacity audience. The appreciation would have been more unalloyed had it not been for several and sundry school children from the lower grades who bored early in the evening and made the vicinity of the front rows, where they had been seated all together by some unlucky direction, an area of exasperation.

At the remaining entertainments this nuisance will be entirely eliminated by the management, which was not prepared last night for the occurrence. The children were there by right of purchase of tickets and had contributed considerably to the financil success of the season.

Miss Frances Ingram was in good voice, her charming personality, her great viola-like tones, and the wonderful accompaniment given by the Misses Vere and Ethel Stearns and Mina Hellekson, with piano, violin and cello, blended into a program of popular light music in happy ensemble.

MRS. MARY MULIGAN REPRESENTS W. R. C.

Mrs. Mary Milligan of the Women's Relief Corps reports that the corps has accepted the invitation of the First Methodist church to attend a memoril service, to be held in that church Sunday, at 11 a. m., and will go in a body. There will also be a memorial post and corps service at the high school, Sunday afternoon.

YEOMAN'S MEET

The members of the Yeoman lodge held a business meeting Friday night at their hall on South San Fernando road. There was a splendid attendance and after all business matters had been discussed, they adjourned to the dining hall, where delicious strawberry shortcake was served.

MEMORIAL DAY PLAN IS FORMING

Fifteen Organizations to Be in Line of Parade

PLACES AWAIT OTHE

All Patriotic Bodies Align With Social and Civic Forces

Slowly the arrangements for the Memorial day celebrations are taking form. It is believed that this year's demonstration will be the finest ever held in Glendale. Up to noon today, fifteen organizations had informed grand marshal Col. Fraser of their intention to participate in the parade, and the program that will follow. These include the city officials, G. A. R., Women's Relief Corps, Daughters of Veterans, Sons of Veterans, Spanish-American War Veterans, American Legion, American War Mothers, Daughters of the American Revolution, Elks' band, Tuesday Afternoon club, Thursday Afternoon club, South Glendale Improvement club, Boy Scouts and Campfire Girls.

It is understood that a number of other organizations will take part in the parade, and Grand Marshal Fraser asks that those not mentioned above will notify him at the earliest possible moment. It will be impossible to arrange a line of march or assign assembling places until all of the organizations have been heard from. All of the bodies are expected to assemble at the place appointed, or near the corner of Orange and Colorado not later than 1 o'clock, Tuesday. About half an hour will be required to assign the different bodies to their respective places, and at 1:30 the march to Forest Lawn will start.

From Colorado and Orange the line of march will be as follows: Down Brand boulevard to Los Feliz road, up Los Feliz road to Glendale avenue, and south on Glendale avenue to the cemetery. The improvement work that is under way at the corner of Brand boulevard and San Fernando road makes it impossible to go down Brand to San Fernando and then cross over.

It is understood that the boys of the national guard will meet at the guard hall not later than 12:30, from which point they will go in a body to Brand and Colorado.

The following communication is being sent out by Commander W. H. Reeves to the organization of the Spanish War Veterans:

"Glendale Camp No. 67, United Spanish War Veterans, has been invited to take part as a body, in the Decoration day parade. We will assemble at the northeast corner Colorado street and Maryland avenue at 1:15 p. m., Tuesday, May 30. The parade begins at 1:30 p. m. This is our first opportunity as a body to participate in any patriotic celebration. It is our duty to do so, both out of respect to the Grand Army and as a lesson in patriotism to the youth of our community. Our chaplain, Col. Fraser, is grand marshal of the parade, and we must show him the courtesy of a full attendance. Let nothing prevent you from participating."

The exercises at Forest Lawn will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

MERCHANTS' TEAM READY FOR GAME

The Glendale Merchants' baseball team will meet the Pasadena M. W. A. team on the local diamond tomorrow for nine innings of pastiming. Jack Kearns will, in all probability, hold down the mound for the local ball tossers. King will be on the receiving end for Glendale. "Walt" Heidler, former Pasadena hurler, will be in reserve.

The local team is fast playing its way into the hearts of the Glendale fans. The team is made up of a bunch of ballplayers that are hard to beat. Several of the players are former Western and Middle West leaguers and know the game from first base through to the home-plate.

The Los Angeles Tigers, formerly considered invincible, played the local boys last Sunday and learned how a real ball game is played. The game was a shut-out, Glendale winning by a 5 to 0 score.

Great Auditorium Here Need for Conventions

By JOHN H. GERRIE

Glendale is a natural convention center. Its scenic location, its proximity to Los Angeles, the attractiveness of surrounding communities make it a favored meeting place for fraternal, religious and other gatherings of importance.

This was illustrated in the choice of this city for recent conventions of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Southern California and of the Los Angeles County Sabbath School Council. Last year the Christian Endeavorers' State Convention was held here and the overflow of the national gathering of Elks in Los Angeles just naturally came to Glendale.

John H. Gerrie

This choice of Glendale for getting together in general discussion and organization is the more notable when it is considered that in two of the basic essentials of convention centers this city is sadly lacking. The first essential is an adequate convention hall or auditorium, the second is ample hotel accommodations.

Most of the gatherings of a religious nature have taken place in the First Methodist church at Wilson and Kenwood streets, that being the largest edifice of the kind in this city. For accommodation, convention delegates have sought private homes or have gone in to Los Angeles or Pasadena or Hollywood.

The hotel situation is soon to be improved in the construction of several projects now on foot. But the auditorium problem has still to be met and solved.

If big organizations of state or national influence seek out Glendale as the most convenient or most attractive place for rounding up their scattered memberships, despite the lack of the two essentials named, what might be done in attracting conventoins if we had here first-class hotels and a super-auditorium, big enough even for the largest national conventions?

No city receives more widespread free advertising of the kind that attracts attention and accomplishes results than a city that becomes known as a convention center. Chicago and St. Louis have added to their prestige and their population by their well-known ability to care for convention crowds at all times and on short notice.

Just now San Francisco is winning large national gatherings because of her excellent hotels and her superb civic auditorium. Most eastern delegates to national assemblies would prefer to meet in Southern California because of its orange country, its oil fields, its beaches and the better advertising this section of the state has had throughout the east. But there is no place in Southern California equipped to handle great conventions.

The lack of a suitable auditorium in Los Angeles offers a tremendous opportunity to Glendale. If there be built in this city a huge hall to accommodate 5000 to 10,000 auditors at a single sitting, with smaller halls for committee meetings and the existence of this mammoth auditorium be broadcasted throughout this land, it might not be long before conventions would be headed this way from all parts of the country.

Perhaps nothing could be devised that would give Glendale such worth-while publicity as the erection of a great auditorium. And not only would it be available for conventions, for it might be made the home of opera, of a symphony orchestra and of community sings. Think it over!

Union Workers Start First Buddy Home Today

Glendale's organized labor today started the erection of the first Buddy Home at La Crescenta for Clarence Christenson. Early this morning representatives of practically all of the unions in Glendale were on the ground and work started.

This house is being built with material purchased at absolute cost from lumber yards and dealers in builders' supplies with money donated by the merchants and others of Glendale and the actual construction of the house is being done free of charge by the union men.

The workers plan to have the home completed by Memorial Day so Christenson, a former service man, disabled through his services to the nation, and his family will be in their own home on that day.

The plan to build homes in La Crescenta for five of the disabled veterans was originated by the Glendale Daily Press. Funds were raised and the co-operation of the merchants secured by the Press. There are five Buddies who are deserving of homes and they are included in the plan. The home being erected today is th first of the five.

C. OF C. SECRETARIES GO TO CATALINA

The chamber of commerce is without a secretary and assistant secretary today. Secretary James M. Rhoades and E. F. Sanders are at Catalina Island attending a meeting of the Southern California Chamber of Commercial Secretaries' Association.

The meeting will continue all day and is of importance to chamber of commerce officials. A complete report of the meeting will be given in the Monday edition of the Glendale Daily Press.

REX KELLEY'S SON NARROWLY ESCAPES

Bob Kelley, five-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex C. Kelley, caused quite a bit of excitement on Friday night, in front of the First Baptist church, when he ran out into the street and was run over by a passing automobile. Although he was not badly hurt, it is hoped that the fright from the accident will serve as a lesson for little boys not to run into the street.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTICES POSTED

Notice has been received by J. Bettner, civil service secretary at the postoffice, of several examinations for government positions to be held in the near future. This notice has been turned over to Postmaster D. Ripley Jackson to be posted and given publicity.

This examination list is one of the most extensive that has been published in a long time. It embraces practically all of the trades, sciences, engineering, clerical, laboratory and other technical and professional work.

A complete list of the examinations and the dates on which they are to be held, together with other information regarding salaries, is posted in the postoffice lobby. Additional information can be obtained from Mr. Bettner.

SHE REPORTED

Grace E. Swift of 524 South Central avenue reported to the Glendale police that at 1:30 p. m. yesterday she backed her machine into a car that was standing in front of the postoffice. Only slight damage was done to the machines.

W. R. C. AND G. A. R. DINE TOGETHER

Decoration Day Committee Reports Harmony in Its Work

PROGRAM COMPLETE

Accept First Methodist Church Invitation to Services Sunday

The regular all-day meeting of the W. R. C. and G. A. R. was held on Friday at the G. A. R. hall. The delicious dinner was prepared by the woman of the corps and was greatly enjoyed by the comrades. The dinner was followed by a short program which consisted of a splendid address by ex-Congressman C. R. Randall and which was given before a very appreciative audience.

A report of the committee on Decoration Day exercises and arrangements was read showing the perfect harmony between the patriotic and civic organizations. A special invitation from the First Methodist church inviting the post and corps to attend the Memorial Day services Sunday at 11 a. m. was read and gladly accepted.

After singing "America" the program closed and the W. R. C. held their regular business session, beginning by seating each new officer with the colors, which was a new feature in their work. This work was put on beautifully and was greeted with applause from the members.

Three new candidates were balloted upon, and one initiated. It was then announced that the W. R. C. would give a chicken dinner on June 3, at 6 p. m., in connection with their big bazzar to be held at the Masonic temple. Tickets were distributed among the different members to be sold. This is the last call that the generous Glendale people will receive to raise money to carry on the much needed repairs on the G. A. R. hall. A rising vote of thanks was given to Mr. Davis of Grand View Memorial Park for donating to this fund; to Mr. Brown for donating the soft drinks which were sold on the streets some time ago; to Miss Gladys Sharpe and the Intermediate school splendid entertainment given for the fund, also they desire to thank the local newspapers for courtesies extended to the G. A. R. and W. R. C.

Next Monday the schools of the city will be visited by members of the post and corps, and this visit is greatly looked forward to by the pupils, who dearly love the old soldiers who visit them. Each boy has his ideal of a soldier and is greatly disappointed if they fail to visit them.

'GLEN' TUCKER IS TO SETTLE IN GLENDALE

Former Mayor of Champaign, Ill., Opens Drug Store

S. C. Tucker, formerly of Champaign, Ill., where he resigned as mayor to come to California, has just located in Glendale. While in Champaign Mr. Tucker spoke so much of Glendale that the inhabitants nick-named him "Glen." He has just leased the corner store in the Bassell block, at the northeast corner of Lexington and Brand and will establish a drug store on this corner, this to be known as the Lexington drug company.

According to the Western Wholesale Drug company's statement, Mr. Tucker will have the finest equipped drug store in the city. He has taken a 10-year lease on this corner and contemplates opening on or about July 1. This store-room was leased to Mr. Tucker by Walter H. Muller of 205 A. N. Brand.

DR. ANDERSON GIVES INSTRUCTIVE TALK

Dr. John Anderson, of 102 West California street, gave a very interesting as well as instructive talk Friday morning, at the Eagle Rock Central school to the boys of the 6th, 7th and 8th grades of the Eagle Rock schools. He told the boys how to care for the human body and explained the relation of the functions of one part of the body to all other parts, and if they misused one part how it would affect the whole body. There were about 200 boys present.

Dr. Anderson has given lectures and talks to a great many boys and knows how to make them interesting and attractive to the young minds. He has also done considerable work of this kind under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A.

Newspaper Hatches Ducks Instead of Ideas

SAN FRANCISCO, May 27.—Ideas are frequently hatched in newspaper shops, but this is believed to be the first time that ducks have been hatched there.

Joe Fiddy, a canny Scotchman in charge of the metal room of a San Francisco newspaper, hated to see anything go to waste, even the heat of the huge metal pot from which the metal flows to cast the plates from which the paper is printed.

The metal pots never grow cold. As soon as one paper is off the press the linotype metal and plate metal go back into the pot for the next edition or next day's paper.

A few weeks ago he came frommarket with a big basket full of duck eggs. And a few days ago he went home with 59 duoklings.

He buried the eggs in sawdust and left them near the metal pot, the heat of which is kept nearly constant. He turned them twice a day, and his ducklings appeared per schedule.

CIGARETTES AND DRUGS ARE ARRAIGNED

W. C. T. U. Convention Closes With Address by Rev. Walton

The concluding session of the W. C. T. U. convention was a hurried one, that delegates might wind up all the loose ends of business and be ready to take the auto ride around Glendale, to which they had been looking forward.

The program numbers included a challenging talk by Rev. James Walton on narcotics, which contained some appalling statistics relative to the use of cigarettes among the boys and girls of the public schools, and which was interrupted by testimony from the audience confirming the statements. He indorsed the statements made by Rev. S. Martin Patch to the effect that tobacco has killed more men than whiskey, but declared its most deadly effects are seen among children, whom it wrecks physically, mentally and morally.

His strong plea was for educational work in the schools. Only by bringing up a new generation fortified against narcotics could the evil be combatted. To that end, he asked for support, moral and financial, for himself and his son, who has been drafted into the work. A resolution indorsing his work, offered by Rev. Stella B. Irvine, was adopted by the convention.

An exercise, directed by Mrs. Ellen Dayton Blair, described on the program as "moving pictures," furnished a pleasant and profitable diversion. In a series of pantomimes which Mrs. Blair called conundrums, the difference between an inactive, sluggish union and one which is alive and at work, was picturesquely portrayed.

Rev. Loomis of Pasadena, a fine physical specimen of manhood, was introduced as a sample of what the L. T. L. (Loyal Temperance Union) will produce. He made an excellent talk, saying that it was the first time he had been placed on exhibition in a temperance program. He confirmed what had been said relative to the necessity for work among children to create a sentiment to sustain the 18th amendment.

Members of the local hostess committee, headed by Mrs. A. B. Smart, were introduced, and thanked for their efficient work in connection with the convention, Mrs. Lily Richardson being especially praised for the fine music she had provided. In response, Mrs. Richardson explained that Glendale is rich in musical talent of a high order, saying that half a dozen conventions could be supplied with artists without duplicating a program. The committee broke into the refrain, "We're glad you came to Glendale," the audience responding with "We're glad we came to Glendale," followed by "We'll come again to Glendale."

Judge Taft addressed the convention relative to the bill to allow banks and trust companies to act as attorneys for their patrons, which is being opposed by the bar.

Subscriptions for the Stella B. Irvine endowment fund were called for, and responses totalling $580 were received. Prizes were awarded to unions which had attained a high standard of efficiency, the first prize of $10 going to La Verne union, and $5 prizes being bestowed upon two San Diego unions and upon Los Angeles union, of which Mrs. Doughty is the president.

Prizes for having completed their rosters before coming to the convention were bestowed upon the county unions of Kern, Riverside, Ventura, Orange, San Bernardino, Santa Barbara, Inyo and Imperial counties, and upon Los Angeles county union, of which Mrs. Marie M Yoeman is president, and which numbers 67 unions. The prize was a copy of the "Women Voters' Manual."

The report of the resolutions committee was adopted. It pledged the convention to stress the evan-

The orchestra aided materially in the work, also played during the supper hour.

Talks were made by Brothers Ingless, William Lee and Carter of the Oxnard lodge, and Spurlin, who has been an Odd Fellow for the past 44 years and is a charter member of the Montebello lodge. James McBryde of Glendale spoke for the candidates. The initiation was witnessed by visiting brothers from lodges throughout Southern California.

BOYS HELD FOR STEALING AUTO

John Morris was held to the juvenile court and Crumm was slated to trial on June 15 in the police court at the hearing of these boys, charged with stealing an automobile belonging to Cleveland van of Glendale night last. The bail of Crumm was fixed at $2000, which up to noon today had not been secured. The hearing took place before Judge Lowe at 10:30 this morning.

The machine that it is alleged these boys ran away with was taken from Glendale Friday night. The boys were arrested yesterday afternoon in Santa Monica and were brought back to Glendale. They spent last night in the city jail.

STOVE CONTEST WINNERS NAMED

The contest conducted by the Trice Furniture company as to the merits of the Sanico range, created a great deal of interest, and many people submitted essays on this popular stove, setting forth its merits over other stoves on the market. The winners' names are being given in an advertisement by the Trice Furniture company. The letters were judged by the advertising department of the Sanico Range company.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

WATCHING YOUR WEIGHT

"I won't have dessert, thanks," said Mary Ellen plaintively, sipping water.

"Dieting again? Wonder how long you'll stick at it this time?" said the eldest son, attacking his dessert with eager spoon and speaking with his mouth full.

"Don't be vulgar, John. You know very well I DID reduce. And NO girl wants to be over weight at my age, does she, mother?"

And Mary Ellen appealed to the slim little mother at the end of the table.

"No, dear. I suppose not. But I don't approve of these starvation diets you girls are going in for. It seems to me that it is all rather stupid. And you make the family quite unhappy, dear, when you insist upon inflicting your spasmodic sessions of dieting upon it."

Big Brother Teases Her

Mary Ellen was silent. She WAS inclined to be plaintive and self-sacrificing about dieting. And she HAD no right to inflict it upon the family, after all.

"Very well, dear," she said. "I won't inflict it upon the family this time. I'll just do it. Since reading that new book I am convinced that reducing one's weight is simply a matter of common sense and intelligent eating, and watching one's weight."

"Watchful weighting, in other words," said the big brother, wickedly.

At which Mary Ellen glared.

But Mary Ellen had stumbled on a big truth.

One's weight is simply a matter of common sense, and what one's weight shall be is largely determined by the individual.

Exercise and Weight

Few people lose flesh through increased exercises, because they exercise so strenuously (for a few days) that the appetite for food and drink is increased. Some people gain as a result, in spite of truly strenuous exercise. So they become discouraged and decide that they must resign themselves to obesity.

Continued and vigorous exercise within the fatigue limit is one key to symmetry.

Faithfulness in the matter of exercise is another.

And a certain amount of activity each day, such as rapid walking, will oxidize much body fat without a profuse waste of fluids by undue perspiration, which is not desirable.

Thirst-provoking foods should be avoided.

Food That Should Be Avoided

Likewise foods that are rich in sugars and starches, in fats and alcoholics must be avoided.

It has been proven that a person desiring to reduce may breakfast freely on eggs and fruit, with a slice of toast and a cup of coffee with a small amount of sugar and no cream. That a lunch of salads or fish, or lean meat, with quantities of vegetables will entirely satisfy the craving for food. Yet a person will not gain flesh on such food, if exercise is faithfully indulged in.

Careful mastication of food materially reduces the demand for food for the mere sake of eating. And by utilizing a little more matter than one takes into the body, one may avoid an unsafe accumulation of fat, which is always undesirable.

The manager of a store was examining the applicant for a position. "Are you a teetotaler?" he asked.

"Yes," was the reply.

"A good salesman?"

"Yes, indeed."

"Can you tell a good lie?" was another question, and there were others referring to the ability to speak foreign languages, etc., all of which were satisfactorily answered. The applicant was engaged and he got on famously until a French girl approached and made known her wants in her own tongue. Then he was stumped. Five minutes later he was facing the indignant employer.

"This is scandalous, sir. When I engaged you, you said you could speak French," he exclaimed.

"True," replied the culprit. "But you also asked if I could tell a good lie."

It is utterly impossible to drive a man to drink who isn't headed that way.

chamber that 17½ percent of the total income of the chamber had been spent on advertising. This percentage set aside as advertising includes all of the printing for the organization and a portion of his and Mr. Sander's salaries for talks made in other cities, in behalf of Glendale, which Mr. Rhoades termed as advertising.

R. E. Olin, public accountant was asked for a report on the finances of the chamber. He said that the monthly overhead is $1800, of which 54 per cent is paid out in salaries.

Director Owen Emery said that the overhead of a chamber of commerce is not the same as any business institution and should not be figured as such. Overhead includes salaries, stationery and banquets and these items are advertising. Salaries and printing should not be considered in the ordinary sense of the word. The chamber of commerce should not rush into that which may mean death to the organization by soliciting extra funds from the members. He advocated having the committee go ahead and get out the best book possible with the funds now available.

Councilman Sam Davis was present at the meeting and asked permission to say a few words. This permission was granted and he suggested that the directors call in some of the ordinary members of the chamber who never attend a meeting of the directors and learn their opinion regarding the organization. He concluded: "The overhead can be reduced but to do it you will have to be hardboiled."

C. D. Lusby said that it was a very small man that could not stand criticism and that the chamber of commerce is big enough to stand it. The time to discuss overhead was three months ago and another opportunity would present itself the first of next year. If the book mentioned by the advertising committee is worth having, the chamber should go ahead and get it. If there is a deficit at the end of the year it can be made up no doubt.

William Howe, of the Glendale Theatre, said that he is in favor of anything that would benefit Glendale and that he would underwrite the $1500 appropriation by giving a check for $100, or one-fifteenth of the amount, and he was sure that 14 other men could be found willing to do the same thing. These checks would be held by the chamber to cover any possible deficit by voting the appropriation and in the event there is no deficit these checks are to be returned to the writers.

William Phelan of the advertising committee said that the chamber should get out a good book or none at all and that now is the time to put this book in circulation, because of the many conventions scheduled for this state in the near future.

The motion to make the appropriation was made and seconded. Before the vote Mr. Rhoades said if the appropriation is voted the chamber will either have to cut down its overhead or increase its revenue. He offered to show the advertising committee at a meeting how they can put out a book for $1250 and said that he would be willing to be one of the 50 to contribute $50 for this purpose.

CADILLAC SALES ARE SOARING

Cadillac sales are exceptionally good in the San Fernando valley, and especially in Glendale.

W. H. Court, of the Court Motor company, Cadillac dealer, at 228 South Brand boulevard, reports the following sales for the past week:

David Black, 350 Kenneth road, four-passenger phaeton; Joe Melczer, North Glendale boulevard, five-passenger sedan; D. Lewinsohn, Kenneth road, five-passenger coupe.

The new type 61 Cadillac is the greatest car the Cadillac company has ever built, says Mr. Court. It is arousing more favorable comment than any car they have produced up to this time.

"We find less sales resistance among Cadillac buyers than ever before, as evinced by the fact that 219 Cadillacs were delivered in California last month, and we are doing even better than that this month."

Mr. Court reports that deliveries are tightening up, and that he now has orders on file for future delivery.

GRAMMAR GROUP OF HI-Y HAS BANQUET

One Hundred and Seventy-five Boys Find Good Time Starts Early

The banquet and program Friday night at the First Baptist church was given under the auspices of the Hi-Y club, grammar school group. There were 175 boys present and their good time started at 6:45 when Rex C. Kelley called the meeting to order. Norman C. Korb returned thanks, after which a delicious cafeteria supper was served, the ladies in charge being Mrs. W. G. Boyd, Mrs. Howard Lennox and Mrs. Rex C. Kelley, who were ably assisted by several Hi-Y boys. During the dinner, musical numbers were furnished by the Hi-Y boys' orchestra from Pasadena, and they played very well.

Following the dinner, Mr. Poeton led in the singing and the boys sang songs that they used at their summer camp last year. Miss Fletcher then gave a clever reading telling of a youngster who told such tremendous stories, and which was greatly appreciated.

Lyle McAllister thanked the leaders of the various groups for their time and trouble they had had with the boys.

Mr. Poeton then gave his splendid talk which pointed out to the boys what they owed their father and mother. He said in part: "Suppose a baby was left on your doorstep tonight and you would have to go out and take care of it, finding someone to take care of it 24 hours a day. Can you imagine what it would cost you? In some cases 50 cents or, perhaps a dollar an hour at least." He did this to point out how much they were indebted to their parents. He also told of how they should appreciate their school privileges and how valuable their education is.

Jack Payne, boys' secretary from Pasadena Y. M. C. A., gave a splendid talk on the summer camps and showed pictures of the camp at Catalina, arousing a great deal of enthusiasm. The camp he spoke of was that of July 12th.

The prayer for dismissal was rendered by John W. Cotton.

GLENDALE 96—97—98

DAMAGED

GLENDALE SENDS DELEGATES TO LA VERNE

Thirty Ladies Attend Founder's Day Home Celebration

In honor of Founder's day of the David and Margaret home at La Verne, a delegation of about 30 ladies attended the celebration there on Friday. They were representatives from the Home Missionary society and the J. O. C. class of the First Methodist church, of Glendale.

The day was opened at 10 o'clock in the morning by a reception held at the home, which lasted until noon, when the ladies, who all brought basket lunches, ate on the pretty lawns and on the porches. The Women's Home Missionary society of Upland furnished the coffee.

The program of the afternoon began at 2 o'clock and was held in the beautiful auditorium of the Bonita high school, which is just three blocks from the home. The program was a splendid one, at which Dr. W. L. Y. Davis, superintendent of the Pasadena district, was the principal speaker, talking in a general way of Founder's day.

The home has been running for 12 years, and this program yesterday was in celebration of its 12th anniversary. At present there are 86 children being taken care of, and the home is kept up almost entirely by the women's home missionary societies of the Southern California Methodist conference. Miss Flora Rice, superintendent of the school, had charge of the program, and several very entertaining musical numbers were furnished by the children.

Mrs. Northrup, who is conference secretary of the W. H. M. S., took up a collection at this time. A scholarship in the home is $75 a year and the various societies took out 16 scholarships yesterday, and there were 30 sustaining memberships taken, meaning that $5 a year will be given by individuals.

The children in this home are not all orphans, some of them being half-orphans, and not all are Methodists, but from many different denominations. The J. O. C. class of the First Methodist church of Glendale took out two scholarships, and the W. H. M. S. already had taken out one.

In order to realize what these good people are accomplishing, it may be stated that when canned fruit or potatoes are served, it takes 15 quarts of canned fruit and 100 or more pounds of potatoes. They are really doing a wonderful work.

Mrs. Mabel Olson of Bisbee, Arizona, and formerly of Glendale, has been visiting her many friends here the past week. She will spend three months at Santa Monica before returning to her home. She says there is no place quite as nice as Glendale and in the near future she hopes to return here and make her permanent home.

Mrs. George R. Perkins, 406 West Garfield, who has been ill for the past ten days, is getting along very nicely. She and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Perkins, motored to Sunland, Montrose and San Fernando, Friday afternoon.

Optimism parts the clouds and the tangles and costs man nothing.

Luck may knock at the door, but it takes hard work to force it open.

Arthur Campbell, who is attending U. S. C. dental College, ha das his guest a fraternity brother, Harry Hansen of Fresno, but who is also attending dental college. In the evening they went with their sister, Miss Kathleen Campbell to a delightful party given at the home of Miss Esther Black, of Kenneth Road.

Mrs. C. M. Crist, wife of Rev. C. M. Crist of the First Methodist church, is leaving today for a two-day trip to San Jacinto. She will go with Mr. and Mrs. Dean Wier of Los Angeles, and all will be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Riley of San Jacinto. Mr. and Mrs. Wier and Mr. and Mrs. Riley, before their marriage and when Rev. Crist was pastor of the Methodist church in Los Angeles, were members of the Baraca-Philathea class taught at that time by Mrs. Crist, and after their marriage have not forgotten their wonderful teacher.

Mr. E. E. East, 121 West Lexington, attended the meeting of the Civic Body of Kern county at Bakersfield, Friday. Mr. East gave an address at the luncheon held at the Hotel Tegler on "Opening Up of Roads Through the Mt. Frasier Country." He was gone just the one day and was very glad to get back to Glendale, as it was terribly warm in Bakersfield and that vicinity.

Bathing Suits That Are Chic But That the Most Punctilious Censor Would Approve

At the left is a bathing costume with pointed trimmings of olive brown. On the attached knickers is a pocket with button. The tie girdle is of black. The other suit, which fits less closely, is of black crepe.

GLENDALE POST LEADS IN PLAN SAYS FITTS

State Commander Comments on Project for Big Local Home

"If the Glendale Post of the American Legion puts its building project across it will have put across a proposition tht is six times greater, in proportion to population, than anything that has ever been attempted by the American Legion. I believe that it can and will be done," said Buron W. Fitts, former state commander of the American Legion, last night at the banquet given by Glendale Post No. 127. This statement and a brief talk on the building program of the local post opened the address on "California Legislative Features of Intereste to the Former Service Man" by Mr. Fitts.

He told the legionnaires of the bills that are being introduced in the state legislature for the benefit of former service men. He also touched briefly on the national legislative program as applied to the former soldier and the adjusted compensation act.

Charles B. Guthrie was the next speaker. He announced the final ratification of the options held by the Glendale Post on the Glendale Hospital and Sanitarium grounds and outlined the great advantages offered the legion through these options.

He said that the only way to make the project a success and give the patriotic organizations of the city a home, and the city a magnificent auditorium, with a capacity to house large entertainments and conventions, was for everyone to give their whole-hearted, determined support in putting over the project. The proposal will undoubtedly receive the whole-hearted support of the people of the city, and deservedly so, as they are not being asked for donations or help, except in a manner that will be to the financial interest of those who underwrite the real estate sales in connection with the building program.

The legion proposes to give full value to everyone connected with the project and no commission or profit has been paid, nor will it be paid to any member of the legion. All profits from real estate transactions will be turned over to the building fund.

Mayor Spencer Robinson spoke for a few minutes and gave his whole-hearted approval to the building project. He scored a big success with his humorous stories and the singing of "Mother O' Mine," "Somewhere" and "Oh Believe Me, Were All Thy Endearing Young Charms."

City Manager W. H. Reeves, in a short talk, pledged his support to the legion building program and said that he thought it a great undertaking.

Herb Henning at the piano and William Bode with a saxophone played several selections.

All together the banquet was a success. Everyone had a good time and felt that it was an evening well spent.

MRS. ARCHER HOST TO LOYAL WOMEN

The Loyal Women's Bible class of the Christian church, which, in the ordinary course of events, would have met Friday afternoon, for the convenience of Mrs. C. S. Archer, the hostess, was entertained Wednesday instead. About 45 ladies were present, and the business session was followed by a program of games, recitations and music, after which refreshments were served. Mrs. Archer was assisted by Mrs. George Scott and Mrs. Peck.

Folks who have the most advice to spare need it most.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS FROM REV. EDMONDS

Discusses Character Before Body and Urges Its Importance

Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Glendale, was the principal speaker at the Kiwanis club luncheon in the chamber of commerce rooms yesterday. His address was one of the best the club has had the oppurtunity to hear, and this is saying a good deal, for the club has had several lecturers of note at its luncheons during the last few weeks of its existence.

Dr. Edmonds chose for his theme "Character," and elucidated upon this virtue in a manner that held the closest attention of the 100 or more members and visitors present. He said:

"I have often wondered if the time has come when new organizations will cease to spring up, but I have reached the conclusion that there is always room for an organization, provided it has as its mission the purposes of doing good. There will always be room for new organizations that have as their prime object the betterment of humanity.

"Character is what you are in the dark; reputation is what people say about you," continued the speaker. "Character is the only thing that will stand the crucial test of time—carry us over the rough spots in life, and finally land us in the eternal city of happiness. Our character must be strong or we will never attain the ends in life we most desire.

"The greatest sin in the world is 'selfishness.' We unconsciously practice it—we purposely practice it, and selfishness hinders our progress in life as much as anything else. Give the other fellow a chance, even though he may be in the same business—you will succeed far better by so doing."

Here Dr. Edmonds referred to many of the big men who have succeeded immensely in piling up millions of dollars, but who have given generously to charity, and at the same time given their competitors condsirerationETAOINNU petitors consideration. We can't succeed by trying to pull others down—eventually, what seems success will turn out the opposite. Dr. Edmonds pointed to the remarkable growth of Glendale, and said that during the eleven years he had been here he had striven to make the city one which would stand out pre-eminently as a "clean city, and a city kept clean." Before entering the ministry, Dr. Edmonds was a business man, and he said he had carried his business training into the ministry, which had given him a grasp of things on a much larger and better scale. He said new people coming to Glendale owed much to those who "held on" and made it possible for Glendale to become one of the best known cities in America, and that we are destined to become one of the big cities of the country in time.

D. H. Smith of the Los Angeles Trust & Savings bank was in charge of the program, and Emil Kiefer gave a silent boost to each member, t being a nice clothes brush upon which was printed the name of this popular firm, Pulliam-Kiefer & Eyerick.

Messrs. Bode and Andresen gave Norwegian and Danish songs, to the delight of the members. Herman Nelson was importuned to give a song in his native tongue, but he preferred to pay the usual fine, instead. In fact, he said, he had forgotten all the old songs, and the members did not iusist that he give one of the late ones.

TROPICO YOUNG PEOPLE ENJOY PARTY

"Nutty" Social in Presbyterian Church Parlors Is Amusing Affair

The young people of the Tropico Presbyterian church enjoyed a jolly "Nutty" social Friday evening, given in the church parlors. There were about 25 present and they had a "nutty" time.

Many games carrying out the "nutty" idea, were played and caused much merriment. It was announced that a "chicken" dinner would be served and everyone was presented with candy corn. Later in the evening refreshments of ice cream covered with nuts, and peanut and cocoanut cookies were served. Special musical numbers were also enjoyed.

Miss Norma Wallace was chairman of the social committee and was assisted by Miss Dorothy Thompson. Refreshments were in charge of Miss Frances Goldsborough, who was assisted by Miss Helena Richardson and Miss Gertrude Ashton.

MAGILLS ENTERTAIN WITH DINNER

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Magill, 475 West Maple avenue, entertained with a charmingly appointed dinner party Friday night in honor of the birthday of Mrs. Walter Flower, 416 Iv ystreet. Places for seven were marked by dainty place cards and yellow favors.

The beautiful table was centered with yellow coriopsis and poppies combined with greenery and at the serving of the dessert course a large angel food cake was brought in centered with a tiny vase filled with yellow poppies. There were also yellow candles and the cake rested on a large plate, around the edge ofwhic h were tiny favors wrapped in yellow paper.

Plates were set for Mr. and Mrs. Walter Flower, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Tyrell, Miss Jeanette Williams of Los Angeles and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Magill.

Don't go in yet, boys—the water's not fine.

K. C. DELEGATES RETURN TO CITY

H. V. Henry and L. F. Wright, Local Delegates, Acclaim Success

Messrs. H. V. Henry and L. F. Wright, who were the delegates of the local council, Knights of Columbus, to the state convention at Santa Cruz, returned Thursday and report one of the most successful meetings the organization has ever held. Credit for this success is considered to be largely due to the efficient work of the Santa Cruz council. The next state convention will be held at Sacramento and the 40th national convention at Atlantic City.

The delegates, who were accompanied by their wives, left Glendale last Saturday and report a delightful auto trip going and coming, the country being very beautiful. They were joined on Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Peter L. Ferry.

Officers elected last year were re-elected this year. Delegates were the recipients of considerable social attention and were given a brilliant reception and ball.

The report of the resolutions committee recommended the establishment of a junior branch of the Knights of Columbus for boys between 16 and 21, and closer cooperation between the American Legion, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and other veterans' organizations.

MRS. DAN HEUKLYN ENTERTAINS CLUB

Mrs. Dan Heuklyn entertained the Thursday Social club yesterday at her home at 641½ North Orange stret. Her home was artistically decorated with many beautiful spring flowers. This was the last meeting of the club for this season and all the members were present. The hostess served a delicious luncheon at 1 o'clock, covers being laid for Mrs. Gust A. Lavison, Mrs. Robert P. McMullen, Mrs. R. E. Snively, Mrs. Joseph E. Foy, Mrs. Marie Petty, Mrs. Albert Pickles, Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Jay Kimball and the hostess Mrs. Dan Heuklyn. In the afternoon a delightful musical was enjoyed by all. The members of the club are planning on motoring to Ocean Park next Thursday.

AUTOS COLLIDE

An automobile drrven by Ethel Carpenter, 446 West Elk avenue, and a machine driven by Elizabeth E. Argus of 535 East Hill street, Los Angeles, collided at the intersection of Colorado and Glendale avenue yesterday afternoon. The fenders of the machines were battered up somewhat, but no one was hurt.

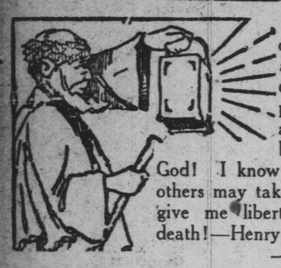
Truths in Epigram



Is life so dear or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God! I know not what course others may take, but as for me, give me liberty, or give me death!—Henry (1736-1799).

Whatever you do, do wisely, and think of the consequences.—The Gesta Romanorum.

CRITICIZING A COURT

Recently a man was acquitted on a criminal charge of peculiarly detestable nature. The judge who had ordered such a verdict immediately rose in his place and said to the defendant "You are guilty as hell." Truly a most unusual episode.

For adverse criticism to be directed against the criminal courts is not rare. There are frequent exhibitions of injustice so gross that, viewing them, the instant impulse is to condemn court methods. The tricks of the rogue lawyer in managing to keep out evidence that would make the truth clear, serve to bring reproach upon an honorable calling. This truth may be known as a moral certainty, but it must be brought before the consideration of the jury, or it is of no avail. It might as well not be the truth.

For a judge as an individual to take exception to his own act as a jurist, probably is unique. It seems an anomolous thing that he should have felt obliged to pursue a course that while proper according to law and precedent, had the effect of releasing a man whom he believed totally unworthy of release. As an occupant of the bench he was forced to do that which was repugnant to him as a citizen.

It is strange if human intelligence, inspired by a desire to have justice done, cannot contrive a code and a system by which justice may be done.

LAUGHING AT THE UNITED STATES

Frequently there comes the information, evidently designed to be disconcerting that "Europe is laughing at us." The real effect of the statement, if it is to be conceded weight, is to impugn the mentality of Europe. Europe has no intellectual right to laugh at a nation that has escaped the desperate situation into which Europe has been plunged. Europe has asked help from this country and has received it. Europe implores this country even now to join it in council for consideration of problems that seem to defy any attempted solution that Europe is able to formulate. Europe owes this country vast sums of money for which no pressure is being brought. It owes its salvation to the intervention of the United States when the threat of absolute destruction hovered over it. It has eaten freely of the bread of American charity. And so, not being either fool nor ingrate, it is not laughing at us.

Even Russia, the most tragic failure of history, is reported to be swept by gales of laughter as it contemplates this great and prosperous country going steadily on to fulfillment of a noble destiny. It observes that American aid saves its people from starvation. It cannot but be aware that refusal of the American administration to recognize as a government the regime of plunder and squalor that has been set up by bolshevism, is a sign of wisdom. So if Russia is laughing, it must be not an outburst of merriment, but the cackle of idiocy.

Europe staggers blindly under the crushing burden of war. Its currency is debased. Its industry is handicapped. Its peace is precarious. It is in no position to laugh. In laughing at the one nation that towers confident and strong, it could be regarded as nothing but a ludicrous and pathetic spectacle.

WORTHLESS MONEY

In Russia the paper ruble is almost without value. The German mark is but the feeble ghost of real currency. In nearly every part of Europe money, considered as a mere bulky commodity, is more abundant than hay, and far less useful. Notwithstanding this, and despite the fact that the monetary system of the United States has proved itself sound, about once in so often some citizen suggests that the printing presses be started in this country and the creation of money by the bale be inaugurated. The most surprising thing about these propositions is that they come from men who have been successful in their chosen walks of life. Nothing could better illustrate the necessity for the conduct of financial matters by students of finance. Debasing the currency of a people is the most disastrous of undertakings.

Demonstration has been complete that a monetary system must rest on a sound basis or it cannot be permanent, and cannot be effective while it lasts. The judgment of the country rejected silved as a basis. The wisdom of that move has been made plain. Now there are proposals to use the undeveloped resources of the country as something on which to base a paper currency. Some contend that water power ought to form a good foundation for an issue of paper, or that unharvested and even unplanted crops, would be tangible enough for the purpose.

There is no likelihood that any of these schemes will get beyond the present stage, which is wholly in the minds of the persons who have conceived them.

CRUELTY OF THE TURK

The government has been asked to investigate cruelties of the Turk. It is a little puzzling that there should be hope of accomplishing anything by this. It is not a matter that needs investigation. Nobody thinks of investigating ocean water to ascertain that it is salty. The bestial cruelty of the Turk is known to all the world. There may be much to condemn, much to punish, necessity for drastic methods of reform, but there is nothing to be found out. The shameful story is known to the world, and as it has been written in blood and tears, chapter by chapter, has been an unspeakable shame to civilization. The powers of Europe have had chances to abate the Turk. They have neglected the opportunity and upon them there rests a heavy judgment.

The present allegation is that the Turks have been cruel to Greek students. So, doubtless they have been, and to all others who have come within reach. It is the nature of the Turk to be atrocious in conduct, and no curb has been forced upon his instincts. Those he is able to reach become his victims. He had a plan for extermination of the Armenian people. Men, women and children, by the sword, by fire, by starvation, by exposure on the desert, he slew. The horrified Americans have done much to alleviate suffering. Their charity has snatched some of the unfortunates back from death. But Europe, closer at hand, has appeared to be unconcerned.

The tale has been told many times. Its truth is attested by uncounted skeletons unburned in the sands, by the remains of pillaged villages, by gaunt survivors now sustained by charity sent from afar. But investigation would be merely the familiar recital of outrage and murder. It could add nothing to human knowledge.

IT IS A REAL ISLAND

While this country is not ambitious for island possessions, it was rather satisfactory to learn that upon discovery of an island in the south Pacific the United States had taken possession. The natural feeling was that had this government not pursued such course, some other government would have run up a flag there, and a new neighbor have been provided. Out of this might have come the possibility of diplomatic complications, of which the world already has plenty.

Later advices tell about the new found island. It is tangible, and may under favorable conditions be observed by the naked eye. At low tide it presents a superfical area embraced by the dimensions of five by nine miles. At high tide it is 120 feet one way and nine feet the other, giving sufficient space for several persons to stand quietly. Of course were they to move about much, they might push each other off into the wet.

It is not plain yet what may be done with the island except to represent it in marine maps by a dot so that the incautious mariner may not bump it in the dark. Yet it stirs the pride to know that the island belongs to a country that will not be inclined to use it for improper purposes. It is likely to remain devoid of society, and not become an educational problem, or offer a mission field. About the only immediate course that suggests itself is to the island stay where it is, and perhaps much as it is, getting all the satisfaction possible from the thought that it is not to be in alien hands.

Scientists have discovered nearby the remains of many human skeletons, some of them indicating a height of seven feet. Probably they represent the earliest inhabitants of this region. It would be exceeding interesting to know how many thousand years ago they lived, and why they quit living.

INGE

By. DR. FRANK CRANE

William Ralph Inge has been dean of St. Paul's Cathedral in London since 1911.

He is one of the most significant figures in British life today.

The author of "Painted Windows" describes him as "very tall, rigid, long necked, and extremely thin, with fine, dark hair and a lean, grey, clean shaven face, the heavy lidded eyes of almost Asian deadness, the upper lip projecting beyond the lower, a drift of curly hair sticking boyishly forward from the forehead, the nose thin, the mouth mobile but decisive, the whole set and color of the face stone-like and impassive." He adds that "when he smiles it is as if a mischievous boy looked out of an undertaker's window."

Dean Inge owes his influence not alone to his position but, to the power of his intellect, to his love of accurate thought, and to his utter loyalty to the truth as he sees it.

Perhaps the best glimpse of the man's character can be got from reading some of his sayings.

Public opinion is "a vulgar, impertinent, anonymous tyrant, who deliberately makes life unpleasant for any one who is not content to be the average man."

He tells us to beware of sentiment, whether in politics or religion. See things as they are, accept human nature for what it is. And act with courage.

His desire is to rescue religion from the sentimental vulgarities which have disfigured it, both the aesthetic extravagance of the ritualist and the organizing fussiness of the evangelical, and to set it clearly before the eyes of mankind as a divine philosophy which teaches the only true science of life.

"Ultimately we are what we love and care for, and no limit has been set to what we may become without ceasing to be ourselves."

Quoting the words of Omar Khayyam, "There was a door to which I found no key," he asks, "May it not be that the door has no key because it has no lock?" That is to say, men make mysteries of things which they might easily solve by experiment.

"Religion is caught rather than taught; it is the religious teacher, not the religious lesson, that helps the pupil to believe."

"What we love, we see; and what we see, that we are."

"Socialism will only be possible when we are all perfect, and then it will not be needed."

He has not much use for spiritualism. "It was not through animism and nercromancy that the Jews came to believe in immortality, but by thinking things out."

"The new type of Christianity will be more Christian than the old because it will be more moral. A number of unworthy beliefs about God are being tacitly dropped."

"Like other idealisms, patriotism varies from a noble devotion to a moral lunacy."

"Not every one can warm both hands before the fire of life without scorching himself in the process."

Altogether a wholesome and vigorous thinker.

THE LISTENING POST

The spirit of work.
That is a great thing.
More time needs to be devoted to its inculcation in schools and places where education is believed to be had.

* * *

The spirit of work.
The spirit that dignifies work.
Makes it sought after.
Makes the youth glad to have a chance to do some of the work of the world.
The thing that glorifies labor.

Ruskin once said that labor without art is brutality.
But we might add that labor without spirit is drudgery.
And drudgery is perhaps more deadly than brutality.

We know something of the spirit of play.
That something that makes the hardest fought battle on the campus or the field or the gridiron a delight.
Something to be glad for.
That is the spirit we need to get into work.

* * *

The student is proud to be selected to battle on the gridiron.
We need to get to him pride to be selected for the battle of life.
Pride at being able to do his share of the work of the world.

The spirit of work.
How is it to be attained?
How is it to be gotten into young men and women?
Frankly, it is not easy to say,
But it can be done.
Perhaps the teachers may be able to find means.

* * *

It is the basis of all real education.
For education is to help us to work.
To make us want to work.
To teach us how to work.
But it is more important that we be inspired to want to work than it is to be taught how.

* * *

So that is what we need in the world of affairs.
The humble toiler who knows the dignity of labor.
The business man who knows what service is and delights to render it.
The clerk who is spirited and alert.

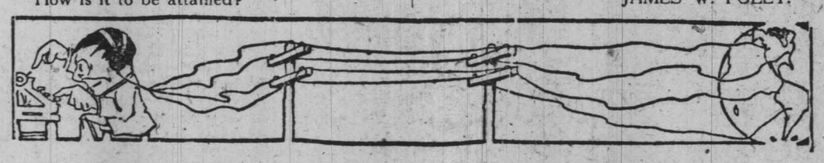
The poet and the artist and the teacher and the preacher and the man of profession.
Knowing the spirit of work.
The desire to DO.
And the will to effect the desire.

* * *

Let us have a place in schools where the spirit of labor may be taught.
By lecture, by example, by precept, by contact.
However it may be done.
Let us not have so many stuffed fowls of education.
Let us have rather lean and active minds and hands seeking labor to do.

JAMES W. FOLEY.



SONGS OF THE POETS

The Sin of Omission—Margaret Sangster (1838——)

It isn't the thing you do, dear;
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you a bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.
The tender word forgotten,
The letter you did not write,
The flower you might have sent, dear,
Are your haunting ghosts tonight.

The stone you might have lifted
Out of a brother's way,
The bit of heartsome counsel
You were hurried too much to say.
The loving touch of the hand, dear,
The gentle and winsome tone,
That you had no time nor thought for,
With troubles enough of your own.

The little acts of kindness,
So easily out of mind;
Those chances to be angels
Which every one may find—
They come in night and silence—
Each chill, reproachful wraith—
When hope is faint and flagging
And a blight has dropped on faith.

For life is all too short, dear,
And sorrow is all too great;
So suffer our great compassion
That tarries until too late;
And it's not the thing you do, dear,
It's the thing you leave undone,
Which gives you the bit of heartache
At the setting of the sun.

BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

Most of us have found the world to be a very busy world. That is, we have come directly in contact with its stern realities. It has no time or inclination to accept excuses for failure of any kind. It cannot stop to recount regretfully any handicaps we may have had in the race of life. It does not stop to pity or help. It merely takes us for what we seem to be and rushes us along to our work for it. Shirkers and impostors, once proved to be such, it drops from its ranks of accredited workers. It has small patience for us if we whine and complain. It tosses us out into the sea of work and says, rather heartlessly some of us think, "Sink or swim!" And sink or swim we do, according to our merits.

All this is a little hard for our self-pity, but it's mighty good for our backbone. If we have any fighting spirit in us it rouses it to speed action. If we haven't we'd never amount to much, however helped we were. Of course, it's easier to present alibis than it is to present victories. But the first doesn't amount to anything, the last is the sole secret of success and fame.

It's passing strange, when all history tells us that it is the one who has to overcome obstacles that wins out, that when it comes to a personal issue we think that for us the usual course should be reversed, and some royal road smoothed for our feet. It's all right for Milton or Columbus or Lincoln to have trod a hard path, but for plain John or Mary Smith it should not be necessary. Bah!

But we're just as unconcerned about the hardships of the other fellow as the world is about ours! That's the funniest part of our inconsistency.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

SEEKING A LIVE ONE

[National Republican]

The democratic part is engaged in a still hunt for a national issue. The democratic leaders do not dare advocate a low tariff for agricultural products. They do not dare attack the dollar which has been the world's standard of value while other nation's standards have fluctuated and become debased. And there is no division as between parties on the matter of the soldiers' bonus, as the vote in the house of representatives without this measure demonstrated.

The democratic party entering a national campaign therefore finds itself in a pitiable plight without a national issue and sadly reverts to the one on which was administered a defeat the life of which seldom has been known in American politics.

If that is all the democrats have to offer, this year, we believe it would be a waste of time for republicans to combat it.

LODGE AND THE SOUTH

[Milwaukee Sentinel]

New England newspapers say democrats waste time when they visit Massachusetts to make speeches against Senator Lodge. Very probably. If Massachusetts hasn't in 1922 discovered that Mr. Lodge, a small politician, is not a great statesman, how could you expect anyone in Massachusetts to take it from a southern democrat?—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Estimates as to the political size of Senator Lodge may vary, but we notice that the only southern democrat who has grown in popular estimation beyond the standard southern calibre is Senator Underwood, and he did it by supporting Lodge in the Washington treaty fight.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

The health commissioner of New York says that at least thirty per cent of contagious diseases could be spread by handshaking. According to him, germs on the hands might have been responsible for respiratory diseases that caused 21,000 deaths in the metropolis last year.

HENRY JAMES

An easy way to avoid being alarmed by the worthy doctor is to believe that he is mistaken. All the indications are that he is talking through his hat.

People have learned much of sanitation. Year by year they are living more in accord with the rules of health. Generally they accept the germ theory of disease, but they do not go to the extreme of believing that a microbe capable of fatal effect is ready to leap forth from the hand or the lips of friendship, and kill by contact.

In the first place, if individuals are going about loaded with deadly germs, and shedding them at every touch, there is no human possibility of dodging. So as well remain calm.

A man was observed one day turning a door knob, but first covering his hand with his handkerchief so as not to be defiled by anything others had touched. Later, it is to be hoped, the handkerchief went to the wash, where it was touched by the laundry lady.

There is no great service to humanity in being a crank, and the germ enthusiast doubtless is nothing else.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Do you know, if I had my life to live over again, I'd cultivate dignity. I'd be as dignified as a new doctor. I'd never use the somewhat loose language that I now affect—because I learned to talk that way when I was a kid and have never been able to unlearn it—and I'd stay up-stage as far as possible. I'm putting this on the most selfish basis possible. Dignity pays.

I know a man who occupies a most dignified position. He is an entirely worthy man—entirely worthy of his position—and if he had a little more dignity every one would recognize that fact. But he tries to be free and easy in his contacts. He tries to let himself down to the level of those he meets. He succeeds only in cheapening himself immeasurably. His secretary takes his cue from his chief. The other night the great man was to meet a lot of young men at a social occasion. The secretary announced the fact—his coming was unexpected—in these words:

"The Big Cheese will be with us tonight."

Every one laughed—from the teeth out—and shuddered internally. The Great Man came and tried to be familiar and easy with every one. He interlarded his conversation with oaths. He told some stories that were decidedly risque. He called men he hardly knew by their first names. He discussed the affairs of his office in a sea-going fashion. He succeeded in making critics out of men who had been disposed to praise and turned some active friends into scoffers.

My own reaction was a savage one. But by and by I began to apply the Great Man's mistake to myself. I know many a man who knows no more than I do—who can do no more and do that no better than I can—who stands higher because he has more dignity. This is an unpleasant confession, but it is a fact. I have seen myself drop in the appraisal of strangers because I did not know how to be truly dignified. They had been prepared to receive me at my own valuation, and I showed them that my valuation was low.

No—that isn't just the case, either. It isn't that I undervalue myself, but I undertalk myself. I try to be free and easy, just as the Great Man did, and I succeed in being undignified and commonplace.

It isn't likely I'll ever be anything else, now. It's too late to change.

DO YOU KNOW THAT?

MRS. JOHN WHITE RETURNS FROM CONVENTION

Reserves Report on Work Until She Consults Notes

Mrs. John Robert White returned Friday night from the annual convention of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, where she represented the Glendale Federation of P. T. A.'s. She says the program was so full of good things she will not be able to digest them all until she has a chance to sit down quietly and review her notes.

San Diego had provided a big program of entertainment aside from the convention numbers. This included a most interesting visit to the Theosophical headquarters and the school established by Madame Katherine Tingley at Loma Linda, where the inmates range in age from infancy to old age. An effort is made to provide ideal conditions of life and instruction from the theosophical viewpoint, and this viewpoint was explained to the visitors by one of the secretaries, and also in a symposium given by the children of the school in an outdoor Greek theatre, the program including some Greek dances and numbers by a chorus of fifty young men and women.

All the gardening for the beautiful grounds is done by the fifty boys in the school and the flowers are wonderful, Mrs. White says, shades of purple predominating.

The convention program included a fine address by Governor Stephens on "Mothers" and their influence in the making of the great men of our country.

Will C. Wood, superintendent of education, urged adequate provision for the education of the children of floating labor, such as the fruit pickers, who move from the south to the north as the season advances, never tarrying long anywhere. He also urged the need to look after the education of Indian children.

Dr. J. Le Roy Stockton of the Santa Barbara State Teachers' college emphasized the desirability of teaching mothers so they will be intelligently prepared to instruct their children in the things that can be taught outside of the school curriculum.

FINAL ACTION ON ZONING ORDINANCE IS DEFERRED

Special Meeting of Trustees Hears From the Realty Board

The new board of city trustees deemed it necessary to hold another special meeting last Monday evening, so many matters continue to come up for consideration as the city rapidly develops. The zoning ordinance, which has not yet been adopted, although it has received considerable attention, was again discussed. There is a difference of opinion among the property owners in the East Sycamore avenue district, which is classed as residential only in the proposed ordinance, some desiring the erection of a store building, others opposed to it as opening the way for too great encroachment of business. There are also opposing opinions as to the retention in the business zone of two or three blocks on Colorado boulevard beyond the end of the car line. Representing the new Eagle Rock realty board, Harry S. Bourne asked that a committee which had been appointed by the board to consider the matter of zoning, be heard before final action is taken. Trustee Mattison moved that the committee be heard at the meeting of June 5, and it was so ordered.

A Glendale contractor for garbage disposal was present, and said he thought arrangements could be made to collect the garbage in Eagle Rock. A meeting with the sanitary committee was advised, to take place at an early date. Dr. Carl Phinney, the health officer, appeared before the board with the draft of an ordinance desired by county officials, regulating the muzzling of dogs that run at large. The city attorney, R. L. McNitt, was instructed to prepare an ordinance patterned after the one recently adopted in Los Angeles.

Citizens who had presented petitions for the resurfacing of certain streets not yet improved under the street bond issue, were assured by Street Superintendent Bramble that during the summer the work of improving all the streets mentioned in the bond issue would be completed.

First there was "The Rustle of Spring," by Sinding; then the season's arrival was celebrated by Mendelssohn's inimitable "Spring Song," and naturally followed by Lancing's "The Joys of Spring," L. Denza's "May Morning," Grieg's "To a Water Lily," and Homer Grunns "Springtime."

Installation of new officers followed: President, Mrs. Constance Braasch; vice president, Mrs. Alice Horton Mills; recording secretary, Mrs. A. R. Rose; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Aida R. Ludlow; treasurer, Miss Ruth Thompson.

YESTERDAY

20TH CENTURY REPORTS SHOW PROGRESS

Gratified With Growth of Organization in Power and Membership

Officers and chairmen of committees gave their annual reports at the meeting of the Women's Twentieth Century club, Thursday afternoon, showing a commendable degree of activity during the club year and a satisfactory general condition. Forty-four new members were admitted during the year, a substantial payment was made on the clubhouse mortgage, and the adjoining lot was purchased as a precaution against any possible crowding in the future.

Officers for the ensuing year were elected, as follows: President, Mrs. M. T. Lee (second term); first vice president, Mrs. R. W. Stephens; second vice president, Mrs. A. C. Fisk; third vice president, Mrs. C. M. Hensley; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. W. Hunt; recording secretary, Mrs. J. H. Moshier; treasurer, Mrs. J. C. Clausen; auditor, Mrs. Arthur Doucette; directors, Mrs. R. L. McNitt, Mrs. Hal Baly and Mrs. A. G. Reily.

The club has been a prime mover in the project to make Eagle Rock universally known as a dahlia city, and will have a dahlia show in September, with prizes for the best exhibits. It was decided at this meeting to follow this function with a country fair, on the clubhouse grounds, in October, introducing many enjoyable features, both indoors and outdoors, and providing a cafeteria dinner each evening.

After disposing of the business the meeting was turned over to Mrs. A. C. Fisk, chairman of literature and current topics, who presented an interesting program. The first number was a classical dance, executed with much grace by Miss Evelyn Thomas of South Douglas avenue. A group of early members of the club had been asked to speak at this meeting, and Mrs. J. Frackleton told of her first visit to Eagle Rock valley, in 1886, when she and her husband drove out with a horse and buggy, through almost unoccupied Highland Park and the road that is now York boulevard, and discovered the ideal place in which to live. The scattered residents of what is now Eagle Rock city soon had several active organizations, meeting at each other's houses, and on Sunday evenings they took their babies and hymn books to some central place and enjoyed old-fashioned sings. If their horses were tired from the farm work, the women walked to their little gatherings. Mrs. Frackleton gave a graphic description of the arrival of the first street car in the valley, for which rails had been laid. While waiting at the end of the line, near its present terminus, a great chugging down on Central avenue was heard, and black clouds of smoke were seen to rise. Then appeared around the turn at the present center of the city a funny old engine with seats at the rear for passengers. It was decked with flowers for an adventurous trip, which ended in a barley field near what is now Pasadena avenue. In a short time, when the famous "boom" of all the surrounding country collapsed, its operations ceased, and there was no means of public transportation for years afterward, until an early resident named Gates started the running of a bus to connect with the car line through Highland Park. Remembering the inconveniences of that period, the speaker expressed thankfulness for the present accommodations, despite their inadequacy.

Mrs. F. P. Richardson, Mrs. Clara Newhouse, Mrs. M. A. Hickson and Mrs. Alice Winters, under the caption of "Old Favorites," spoke of the books which had most interested them, from childhood to the present day. In addition, Mrs. Winters described the interesting old city of St. John, New Brunswick.

Last Saturday afternoon Mrs. A. R. Rose gave a miscellaneous shower party at her home, 211 North Acacia avenue, for a bride, Mrs. G. B. Fluty, of Los Angeles. All the guests were from that city.

Recent arrivals from Pittsburg, Pa., are Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Parkinson. They are living at 1004 East Colorado boulevard.

PERSONALITY IS AGAIN DISCUSSED BY REV. ISAAC

Declares for the Initial Harmony of Relations in Creation

Continuing the course of lectures on "The Making of a Personality," in the Congregational church, Rev. E. Morgan Isaac last Wednesday evening discussed "The Personality That Makes for Success." He began with the declaration that everything in the universe is successful, everything functions and is harmonious. "There can be no success not related to the eternal, and can be no failure if our relationship to the eternal is what it should be.

"The first step toward failure is the thought of failure, the first aid to success is affirmation of success. Negation is the most destructive thing in the world. The eternal mind always works through principles. The infinite has specialized in humanity and man is created with the power to specialize. Whatsoever man does that is successful, God has done through him. This is one of the most remarkable things that has ever been discovered, and will regenerate the world.

"Electricity is omnipresent, but it was long undiscovered. Through the volition and initiative of man, it was made known, when certain persons specialized in electricity and success was spelled. Thus you see how important it is for you to get the thought fixed that you are part of the eternal, you are the eternal thought manifest — a perfectly scriptural statement.

"Specialization is in its infancy, so there is a chance for everyone to create, through its adoption. Many men have never been awakened to their potentialities, they are actually dead, to them. This is one of the most tragic things in the world. No man is really alive unless he realizes that he is a part of the Infinite, the Eternal manifest in the individual.

"This explains some of the wonderful statements of Jesus. 'Seek ye first the kingdom of God (which is spirit), and all things shall be added unto you.' One may become a magnet, drawing all things to him. Success is always born of optimism, never from gloom. In God is no darkness nor gloom. No man who lives in an atmosphere of gloom can hope for success. An atmosphere of love, too, is essential to success. No man will ever win success with anything he does not love and enjoy. This is evident with the carpenter, the physician, the scientist, and in every line of endeavor. No one should ever take up an occupation without feeling love for it. God is Love.

"Success always thrives in an atmosphere of trust and faith. When you begin to distrust people you start a destructive influence. Success is always looking for virtues, not for faults. When there is any effort to find perfection, say in domestic relations, trouble ensues sooner or later."

At this point the lecturer paid a high tribute to the many wives who had made successes of their husbands by believing in them, encouraging and boosting them.

"Do not forget that success is never hampered by conditions. Through thought, conditions do exist, but they can be put out of existence. Your thought can control all conditions. Until man has learned how to think he can never be a success. Bolshevism in Russia is an illustration of this. One cannot build by tearing down. There is no law outside of thought. Hence, if we learn how to think constructively, it will always bring success. Criticism of others is a destructive thing. Let us remember that Paul said, 'We are workers together with God.'"

ROSES CELEBRATE WED ANNIVERSARY

Celebrating their fourth wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Rose of 211 North Acacia avenue, gave a dinner of 12 covers on Sunday evening. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. Hartley Taylor and daughters, Mrs. Hilda Kazinsky and daughter, the Misses Carrie and Margaret Rommel, J. H. Minassian and Sid Kessler, from New York.

Mrs. W. J. Roach of 153 North Royal drive left for San Francisco on Tuesday, for a short stay.

MAN OF MYSTERY AT THE T. D. & L.

Rex, the mental wizard, seer and crystal gazer, who has astounded the crowds at the T. D. & L. Theatre, will be seen for the last times today at the popular theatre. Three special performances will be given today at 3, 7 and 9 p. m. to accommodate the many Glendalians who wish to witness the final presentations of this man, who is said to be the greatest mental telepathist appearing on the American stage today. Rex invites those who are skeptical to submit questions to him.

Ralph Allan has supplied in Rex one of the really fine vaudeville acts ever presented in Glendale and follows his slogan, "Regular Admisson Prices!" In addition to Rex the Jack Holt-Bebe Daniels picture, "North of the Rio Grande," will be the feature picture.

Sunday the T. D. & L. will present the thrilling western picture, "Tracks," the story of the famous "Texas Rangers" filled with thrills, adventure, daring and romance. It is an exceptionally entertaining picture and will be given in addition to Harold Lloyd in the comedy "Hit 'Em Again," Kinograms, Travelogue and Alton at the organ.

NEW COURSES IN FORESTRY OFFERED

That the University of California anticipates an early and great expansion of the lumbering industry in California and that the lumbermen will, in not many years embark on the practice of forestry on their lands, is indicated in a bulletin just issued from the university, entitled, "Announcement of Courses in Forestry."

The attractively illustrated 40 page booklet typifies the work of instruction at Berkeley and the summer forestry camp in Plumas county. The booklet describes the aims and facilities of the Division of Forestry in which is centered the work of instruction in forestry, lumbering and grazing. It also calls attention to the field open to properly prepared men in the purely forestry profession, the lumbering industry and the grazing and livestock industry.

A suggested program of study of preparatory and allied subjects is presented as a guide of students who wish to prepare themselves for either forestry, the lumber industry, or the grazing and livestock industry.

Anyone interested in the "Announcement of Courses in Forestry" may obtain a copy upon application to the Division of Forestry of the University of California, Berkeley.

GOOD VAUDEVILLE AT THE GLENDALE

'Dangerous Little Demon' is Film; Sunday and Monday Attractions

An attractive bill of high class and entertaining vaudeville, comes to the Glendale Theatre with the regular weekly vaudeville road show. Honeysuckle and Violet, in their original vaudeville offering "The Sculptor's Dream," should prove a solid hit in this artisitic vehicle. These clever artists have produced an artistic study of song and dance. The Harmony Trio, in a musical cycle of harmony and music and The Dohertys, the well-known comedy funsters will add materially to the quality of the bill. Jack and Viola Gilbert, presenting "Varieties," should provide laughter from their first entrance until the final curtain. Ray De Costa, in his high class and charter song studies, rounds out this well balanced and entertaining vaudeville bill.

Considered by many one of the screen's most capable leading men, Robert Ellis has a great deal back of him when he comes to the Glendale Theatre tonight, opposite Marie Provost in her Universal starring vehicle, "The Dangerous Little Demon."

A couple of kids together!

This aptly describes Bebe Daniels and "Eddie" Sutherland, respectively star and leading man of "Nancy From Nowhere," the Realart picture which open on Sunday for two days at the Glendale Theatre.

When the company was changing sets, or when for any other reason they were free, these two screen favorites would either be putting on their burlesque classic dance, or doing their fake acrobatic act, with many cries of "Allons! Hup!" and all the atmosphere of the "best Continental artists."

MACHINE BUYING IS NO LONGER PROBLEM

Chevrolet Car Has All the Qualities Needed for Roads

"Buying an automobile is no longer a problem," said C. L. Smith, corner of Broadway and Kenwood, local agent for the Chevrolet automobile. "Here we live right in the center of a network of wonderful roads. Even the mountain and desert arteries are easily accessible and for this reason, if no other, the buying of the automobile should be easy.

"In the Chevrolet car is embodied all the essentials that go to make up a genuine automobile, and while many contemporaries can boast bits of luxury, none can more than equal such qualities as simplicitym accessibility of parts without desassembling, durability, particularly economy in gasoline and tire mileage. Also low cost of upkeep, less time in the repair shop, beauty of design, and the one big feature—an easy riding car: proper balance of weight, special designed leather upholstery, ample leg room—all combine to make a car that is a wonder at the price.

Outside of the radiator, especially the air passage through the core which surrounds the water passages, should be kept free of mud, so that the heat can be more readily radiated. A thick coating of mud makes the radiator hold the heat. When painting the radiator use a thin dead-black paint. Dull black radiates the heat more effectively than bright metal.

Spark plug failures are due to short-circuits, cracked porcelains, electrodes burning away, compression leaks and moisture condensing on the insulators. Short circuits may be caused by excessive carbon formations. The only cure is to clean the plug.

The World's First Vibrationless Motor!

The fact that the Rickenbacker Six has no period of vibration has set the entire motor car industry agog!

Never before has this been accomplished, yet here it is, and the principle itself is perfectly simple. Come in and see it for yourself.

SHOES AND BATS HAVE CASUALTIES

Last as Long as You Care, Says Kuhns of Czek Autolectric Co.

"Did you ever try to ask now many months a pair of shoes would last?" asked Mr. Kuhns of the Cizek Auto Electric Co., Colorado and Brand.

Storage batteries were under discussion and the question of the length of life of the storage battery had arisen. "Well, it's the same way when you ask about the life of a storage battery.

"The shoe merchant will tell you that it all depends upon the amount of wear, tear and care you give the shoes as to how long they will last—and he will lay special stress upon the care.

"The manufacturers of the Willard batteries have figured as a matter of fact that there are four things that determine the life of a battery. These are use, time, care and the quality of the battery itself.

"If anyone makes unusual demands upon a battery he will no doubt reduce its life by a few months—but with all other things equal he will have attained a satisfactory mileage. Consequently cost per miles in such a case is as fair a basis for comparison as cost per month.

"What does time do to your battery? Well, going back to the shoe argument what would happen if you bought a new pair of shoes, wore them for a couple of weeks and then left them off exposed to every condition for any length of time? They would deteriorate, in fact they would wear themselves out. And it's the same with a battery?.

"Care is the next factor. Your battery is something, not only to use, but to use up. You provide your car with electricity for starting, lighting and ignition by using up your battery. It is not an inexhaustible source of supply of electricity, but just a boxful of electricity making ingredients and these ingredients must be restored as they are used or the supply will give out.

"The best protection is to fill and refill the cells with water, recharge the battery regularly, preferably at a service station and have tests made of the battery at least every two weeks. Such care will guard against break-down and assure your battery of a ripe old age."

It is a well-known fact that water has considerable lubricating qualities itself; in fact, in some steam engine designs the condensation of steam within the cylinders is relied upon to lubricate the cylinder. Water, no doubt, would provide some benefit in lubrication by its own action and by reducing the tendency of the oil to burn or vaporize before its lubricating qualities have been spent.

If the carburetor leaks, the engine will be flooded and may be hard to start.

What Say to a Roll Toward the Beach Tomorrow in the Patient Old Bus?

Here's the Route, and Overhead's the Weather, So Get Out the Breeze Clothes and Fill Up the Tank

THEN LET'S GO FOR A LUNGFUL OF SEA AIR

To the Old Family Picnic Grounds, Long Beach, via Ivanhoe Road, Down Glendale Avenue in Edendale, Along Second and Figueroa

Pretty warm? Well, what do you say to a jaunt down to the beach? This is ideal beach weather. The warm spring days are here and with them come a desire to get away from the familiar haunts, the paths and scenes that we have known during the past winter months. Nothing but a trip away from home will turn the trick.

So just throw a few things in the old market basket and point the nose of the old boat toward the south. What shall you take? Oh, most anything. You might plan a wienie roast on the beach—quite a way down, you know, away from prying eyes. Or you might have all the good things ready for the table, with the thermos bottles filled with the desired drinkables. Then down on the sand, where the sand is playing tag with itself, you can spread out the little canvas and enjoy the feed in solid comfort. Seabreezes go good as an accompaniment to a good-sized, well-rounded lunch.

The trip suggestion for this week is the old stand-by family picnic grounds—Long Beach. From Glendale go to Los Angeles via the Ivanhoe road, down Glendale avenut in Edendale, along second, and down Figureoa to Vernon, where turn left and proceed to and through Huntington Park.

The road from Huntington Park to Los Angeles is for the most part comparatively flat. It is a section which during the past few years has experienced a wonderful growth. Little sections, promoted by real estate firms have sprung up all along the road, and the prospects are that before many years the country along this boulevard for the entire distance between Los Angeles and the sea will be built up practically solid. Not so very long ago almost all of this stretch was taken up by vegetable patches, berry fields and sugar beet plantations. From a few hundred dollars an acre some of this land has advanced to as much as two thousand dollars a lot for residence property and three or four times this amount for business sites.

It is something like 27 miles from Glendale to Long Beach, and every foot of this distance provides some new feature and a point of attraction that will make the jaunt well worth while. On down through Willowville you go on along American avenue in Long Beach. Almost before you are aware of it you are looking out over the beautiful expanse of blue. The cooling salt breezes will bring back the old pep and once more you will feel that life is worth living, after all.

You can stay at Long Beach as long as you desire, but do not remain too long, for the jaunt of the day is not half over. The aim is to continue along the road that skirts the ocean, down to Alamitos Bay, Naples and Seal Beach. After taking in the sights at Seal Beach take the road leading away from the ocean, up to Los Alamitos, and on to Artesia. Short stops in each of the towns visited may be enjoyed, this adding somewhat to the pleasure of the trip.

Continue up to Norwalk and on to Santa Fe Springs, from which place take the Telegraph road past Rivera and back into Los Angeles, from which place wander homeward by any route desirable.

FISHING STREAMS AND LAKES IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

More than four a half million trout were reared and distributed last year by the California Fish and Game commission in the counties of Southern California, nearly all from the new Mount Whitney and recently enlarged Bear valley hatcheries. While these plantings will be too short in growth to give good sport this season until late, the fish and game commission has been distributing millions of rainbow trout particularly during the past several summers, and as soon as present high waters subside the best sport ever known may confidently be expected.

AGUA BLANCA CREEK

Reached by way of Saugus and Piru. It is necessary to pack from Piru for a distance of 13 miles to the creek, the waters of which are clear and high for early season fishing. Fishing is reported good in Fish creek, eight miles farther beyond the Agua Blanca creek.

SESPE RIVER

Is carrying a large stream of water this season, and there are many deep pools. Reached by way of Fillmore and it is possible to drive up to Henley's camp. Motorists must prepare to carry their full camping outfits as accommodations cannot be secured at this camp to date. It is not advisable to attempt driving beyond Henley's camp. Good camping space is provided.

SISQUOC AND SANTA PAULA CREEK

VENTURA RIVER

Reached either by way of Santa Paula or Ventura. Fine fishing is promised in the waters of this stream and Matilija Hot Springs vicinity. Roads are in splendid condition and plenty of fish are in sight close to the resort. Those wishing to fish below Matilija Hot Springs will find good sport near Toper's ranch, which is located at the junction of the Matilija Hot Springs and the North Fork.

LYONS SPRINGS

An ideal camp spot, is located one and one-half miles above Toper's ranch.

LATHROP'S CAMP

SANTA YNEZ RIVER

North of Santa Barbara; best reached by way of Gaviota pass and Buellton. The waters in this stream are high and of considerable width. Many small fish can be seen as well as a large number of steel head. It will not be possible to fish in the Santa Ynez river, as the San Marcos rancho has been closed to the public.

SISQUOC AND MANZANA CREEKS

ZACA LAKE

Is now closed to the public, as it has been turned into a health resort operated by private parties.

BIG ROCK CREEK

Follow the San Fernando boulevard to Saugus, then through Mint canyon to the small station of Harold near Palmdale, then right to Little Rock creek or Big Rock creek. In both, snow water from the slopes of Mount Baldy fall into these swift streams. Waters are high at present and fishing will be good at the South Forks or Holcomb creek tributaries.

MALIBU CREEK

Reached by way of the Ventura state highway and Calabasas, thence 12 miles to Crater's and Brent's camp. These resorts are prepared to take care of campers and report that fishing will be good from the start.

PIRU RIVER

The upper waters of this stream can be reached by taking the Ridge route to Bailey's ranch and Gorman's, then turning to left at the latter point.

BIG TUJUNGA RIVER

Near Sunland, reached via the San Fernando boulevard. At present, this stream can not be forded by machines and it is necessary to pack to Switzer's camp or Colby's camp up the Arroyo Seco. Waters are high but clear.

SAN GABRIEL RIVER

Reached by way of the Foothill boulevard and Azusa. The new cut in the road at the entrance of the canyon is almost completed and is expected to be ready for traffic May 1. It is possible to drive approximately 10 miles, then it is necessary to hike to the various forks of the stream, which have an abundance of clear water and good fishing trout.

SAN DIMAS CREEK

Reached by way of the Foothill boulevard and San Dimas canyon. Road passable up to good fishing sites.

SAN ANTONIO CREEK

Reached by way of Foothill boulevard and Uplands. The fishing near Ice House canyon in this creek should be good, as the waters are clear and high.

DEEP CREEK

Melting snow on the mountain slopes will keep this stream unusually high for the next thirty days. It is best reached by way of the Foothill boulevard to San Bernardino, thence up Waterman canyon to Arrowhead lake and Deep creek. Those wishing to reach Deep creek by way of Cajon pass and Hesperia cutoff will find the road passable from Hesperia only as far as the Mojave river. On account of high water in this river it is necessary to leave cars, then hike the remaining distance to Deep creek.

UPPER SANTA ANA RIVER

Can not be reached by machine until the Mill creek control road is open.

BIG BEAR CREEK

Best reached at present by way of the Victorville route to Big Bear lake, thence by hiking to Bear creek.

HILCOMB CREEK

Can be reached at present by way of Big Bear valley.

SNOW CREEK

Which enters the desert near Whitewater, can be reached by way of Beaumont, Banning and Whitewater ranch, then three and one-half miles over a sandy wash. This is a short stream, but full of pockets and pools where rainbow trout of fair size are caught.

STRAWBERRY CREEK, WEST FORK AND UPPER SAN JACINTO WATERS

Reached by way of Riverside, Hemet and Idyllwild. Streams are of fair size and fish reported plentiful.

LAKE TROUT

Fishing can be had in abundance at Big Bear lake, reached by way of the Victorville road, distance 154 miles. Roads are fair all the way. Resorts are open in the valley and prepared to take care of a large number of fishermen.

ARROWHEAD LAKE

Can be reached via Waterman canyon. At present the resort is closed, but will be open about June 1. Fishing will start here at the opening of the season, May 1, but as only a few boats are obtainable the trip to this lake is not advisable until proper boat accommodations can be secured—about June 1.

HEMET RESERVOIR

Reached by way of Riverside and Hemet. This lake is now full of water and fish and the road will be in excellent shape by May 1.

CUYAMACA LAKE

Located in San Diego county, beyond Julian. Large rainbow trout can be caught here, still fishing or trolling.

KERN RIVER

Best reached by way of Bakersfield and Caliente. This is one of the finest trout streams in Southern California. Large fish are caught above and below the dam. Roads good.

OWENS RIVER VALLEY

The country north of Bishop will not be open to travel until about the middle of May, and the many streams and lakes in that district can not be reached at present on account of melting snow conditions affecting the roads.

MALIBU RANCH

It is only possible to drive one and one-fourth mile north of the junction of the Topango canyon road—along the beach. Beyond that point the road is closed for construction and is passable for those who, for business reasons, have to get through. In such cases a permit is necessary.

MORENO DAM, WATERMAN RESERVOIR, BARRET DAM, HODGES LAKE

All in San Diego county, and are well stocked with trout.

If you want to thoroughly clean a dirty, sooty spark plug, soak it over night in alcohol. Another good and quick way is to insert the plug in the ground, terminal point down, and fill the shell carefully with gasoline and ignite with a match. When the gasoline is burned out the plug will be found to be almost entirely cleaned of soot.

Leakage at the stuffing box may usually be stopped by tightening the nut around the pump shaft, but persistent leakage calls for repacking. This is a simple job, but it might be well for you to watch some one else do it the first time. When properly packed it will last several months, merely requiring tightening when it leaks.

OU. CALIF. AUTO CLUB DOUBLES SERVICE

pring Rush Brings Many Bureaus Into Foreground

This is the time of year when otoring organizations all over merica begin to double their acvity in service departments.

And in Southern California, the utomobile club is no exception the general rule—other than it probably planning to be about ree times as active as any other otoring club in the world beuse it is the largest and because is located in the motoring mec- of the continent.

The theft bureau of the club anounces that it is going to make a remendous drive against the wners of private garages throughut the southern part of the state ho help to protect auto thieves y renting them space in which to tore stolen cars.

Private garage owners do not o this knowingly, but every time ey rent their garage to a strangr this stranger may be an auto hief. But garage owners should eport the fact that they have ented their property to the club nd let the club detectives investiate the situation.

Approximately $500,000 in stolen utos is now hidden in private arages throughout Southern Calfornia, says the club's theft bureau, and the thieves have learned hat this is the safest way to esape detection. The stolen cars re hidden in the garages until he chase blows over.

Other departments of the Auto lub are going to be active this ummer, more than usual, in view f the fact that eastern motorists n larger numbers than ever beore are flocking west. This inludes the insurance department, he legal department and the hipping department.

COLOR PROBLEM IS SOLVED FOR THE MILLER TIRE

Can Be Had Now in Any Hue of Blue or Purple

Through a new discovery just made by the manufacturers of Miller tires vulcanized rubber may be made in any shape or color from the most delicate pink and blue to the deepest blues and purples. This new discovery is a distinct triumph of American science.

Prior to the war, the colors were used by the American companies, which were absolutely dependable on foreign sources of supply. It was not long, however, before the textile industries had practically solved its color and dye problem. But there was no solution in sight for the rubber maker, who had to take into account the heat feature. As a consequence, an addition to the research laboratories was established in the Miller factories at Akron to work out formulas for the colors most used. Laboratory findings were tested out in the factory. The whole effort at first was bent on duplicating or substituting the foreign product. In a few months the company was no longer dependent upon any foreign country for the colors for its products.

For the past year the research laboratory has been engaged in developing color-combinations that hold under the action of sulphur at a temperature of over 280 degrees Fahrenheit. The color is now vulcanized in the rubbed.

Toy balls and similar products may now be made in highly-colored inlaid designs like patterns in linoleum. No paint to crack, chip or come off. Bathing caps are possible in the most brilliant hues. Perhaps the most striking example of the new art is in repair rubber. This was formerly made in black only, with the result that its use was limited to the repair of inner tubes and tires. Today its many colors have enormously broadened its field of usefulness.

The William H. Hooper company, 222 East Broadway is agent for the Miller tire in Glendale.

Sometimes we fear a dear lady we know is quite hopeless as an automotive student. She does not drive, but she is intensely interested in All About It.

"I don't suppose," she said one day, "you use the radiator in the summer time."

We assured her it was quite necessary to keep the engine cool.

"But not in winter, if it is the tendency of the engine to be warm."

We assured her that winter brought danger of freezing.

She was puzzled.

"I am quite right in assuming the engine is under the hood?"

We assured her she was right about the engine being under the hood.

"Well," she finished, "I don't see what good the radiator does by being back there on the floor of the tonneau."

In laying up a car for the winter care should be taken to cover the nickle or brass finishings with a lubricant: especially is this true with nickle finishings. This will prevent undue rust and save considerable trouble when the car is again placed in service.

Intake valves should never be open before the exhaust valves are closed, because they will take in some of the burned charge along with the mixture.

OPEN AIR DELIGHT IS FORD'S BY PRODUCT

So Says Jesse Smith, Glendale Dealer, Who Believes in It

"These are the days when every minute spent in the great out-of-doors seems especially delightful," says Jesse Smith, Glendale Ford agent, "and there is no way so thoroughly enjoying these outings as to go via. the automobile. Whether it be to the seashore or the mountains the pleasure will be greatly enhanced if it is made in the picnicker's own machine, when the drived can go and come as he pleases, and stay much longer in the open than he can if he travels via. the street car.

"The new prices on Ford cars make it possible for all to enjoy to the full the great out-doors. The economy of the Ford is another feature that appeals to the average motorist. It costs less to run a Ford than it does to operate any other car on the market today."

AUTO DOCTORS ARE WE, SAYS FIRM

McGrath & Hunter Know How to Diagnose and Shoot Trouble

"We want to be your auto doctor," says "Mac" of the firm of McGrath and Hunter, 321 South Brand boulevard, "and we will take care of your car as you desire—by the job, by the month or by the year. Surely that's fair enough.

"Our business is to repair automobiles. We have followed this line for years and know how to take apart and put together all makes of cars. Our years on the job has taught us how to locate trouble without experimenting. Before attempting to repair the trouble we take time to locate it. After ascertaining just what the trouble is we take the direct route, thereby saving time, which means money in the pocket of the car owner."

This firm maintains a 24-hour tow service. Its motto is, "Repairing not jus' fixin'."

RICKENBACKER CAR IS SENSATION

So Says William Hooper of His New Offering in Machines

"The ability of the motoring public to accurately judge motor cars is strongly shown in the instant success of the Rickenbacker line," said William H. Hooper, of the William H. Hooper company, 222 East Broadway, which firm has just taken over the agency for the Rickenbacker car.

According to his statement, the car has many advanced ideas of engineering in it, which combine to give it unusual performances and a marked absence of motor vibration, and while motorists are, as a rule, dubious about new ideas, they are instantly won over when they have taken a ride in the new six and judge it by its road performance.

Without doubt the car first attracted attention through the fame of its designer, who is known all over the civilized world as the ace of American aces in the recent world war. Mr. Hooper's several year's experience in Glendale is also inducing many to take a look and take a ride but he states that the name of the designer and distributor have become secondary consideration, with those who have given the car a thorough try-out and purchased one.

The novelty of two flywheels attracts a great deal of attention from those who come in to see the stripped chassis, but, when they take the wheel and turn the motor up at good speed on the road, they realize what the two small flywheels mean in total absence of vibration. Rickenbacker departed from the conventional also when he swung the body between the two long rear springs, instead of setting it on top of them. The suspension is said to be the reason for the steadiness with which the car holds the rought roads and the absence of rolling, or sideways that manufacturers have been striving to overcome.

The fact that the manufacturers are working full time to supply the demand of their present distributors and that they are not appointing any additional ones for the present, speaks well for the car, as a merchandising proposition for it was first introduced at the New York show last January, and has been on the market for a very short time, yet the production is already oversold.

Unless the piping is tight there is danger of excessive vibration which will strain the connections of the intake pipe and cause them to leak, making the engine miss, hesitate and possibly backfire, or at least run irregularly on low speeds.

On high speeds a good cool mixture is obtained because cold air comes in at the auxiliary valve and the air through the hot air pipe has not time to get more than warm.

THE WISE OWNER STUDIES HIS CARBURETOR

The Vaporizing Apparatus Is Worthy of All the Attention It Gets

The owner of the automobile would do well to study the construction and purpose of the carbureter. Generally speaking, it is a device that vaporizes the liquid gasoline and combines it with the required amount of air so that it will burn with a very intense heat in the combustion chamber of the gasoline engine at a very wide range of speed.

In some carburetors the amount of gasoline that is sprayed is controlled by a needle valve which can be adjusted from the driver's seat, some others have the gasoline adjusted on the carburetor, and can be adjusted only when the hood is raised. Many carburetors have no adjustment on the air; others have adjustments of air on the steering column, so they can be adjusted from the driver's seat while the car is in motion, while others have to be adjusted at the carburetor.

The general rule for adjusting a carburetor is to adjust the gasoline for low speed and the air for high speed, but before a driver attempts any carburetor adjustment there are a number of things he should do. If all motorists would learn just one thing about carburetors there would be far less motor trouble, that is leave the carburetor alone until everything else has been made right. Never attempt to adjust this important thing until you have tested your compression, proven that your ignition is in first class order, and that lubrication is good.

To test the compression, use the starting crank. With the ignition switch turned to off position pull up on the starting crank until a cylinder is under compression, hold against the compression with a steady crank pressure and note how long it takes for the compression to decrease to a point where the crank moves easily. If under a good steady pull the compression holds up for a half-minute, it is satisfactory. Turn to the next point of compression and repeat the test until all cylinders have been tested. If all stand the test there is nothing to be done, but if one or more cylinders are leaking compression this must be remedied. The commonest cause for lack of compression is leaking valves. They must be ground to make them air tight. Compression leaking past the piston rings is usually accompanied by an excess of oil in the combustion chamber; also a hissing noise can also be heard if the ear is held close to the breather pipe while the compression is being tested. This is a serious matter and requires a trained mechanic to repair.

After testing the compression test out the ignition. This can be done by removing one wire at a time from the spark plugs and holding the end of it about a quarter of an inch from the head of the engine and note if a strong, steady spark is delivered from the wire. This test is made while the engine is running on its own power. If the spark is good, test the next, and so on until all of the secondary wires have been tested. The next point is the spark plugs. A plug should be clean with the points adjusted so that the opening between the points is .030 of an inch. This is correctly measured by a thickness gauge, but as few motorists have a thickness gauge something else is necessary, and it has been suggested that a dime be used, but a dime is too thick unless it is well worn. A cracked or dirty porcelain is a source of much ignition trouble, but a dirty plug does not of necessity mean a poor plug. If a porcelain is suspected as being defective and the porcelain is removable, take it out and clean and test it, if it cannot be taken out then substitute another good plug for the defective one and note results.

MOTORCYCLISTS ARE CALLED TO GYPSY TOUR

Decoration Day Road Run for All Drivers of Tandem Wheels

The motorcycle riders from all over California are holding a Gypsy tour to Pismo Beach over Decoration day, leaving the Los Angeles Motorcycle Club house, 449 West Jefferson street, at 7:30 a. m. Sunday, May 28, and returning Tuesday, May 30. Their route takes them through Ventura, Santa Barbara and Santa Maria to Pismo Beach, where the biggest gathering of motorcycle riders will hold the biggest fun-fest ever put on. A regular schedule is laid out at 24 miles an hour with sufficient stops provided for gas, oil, etc., and as the route is entirely over boulevard it will not be too strenuous for even the lady riders.

This tour is promoted by the Motorcycle and Allied Trades association, an organization of factories, dealers and riders having as its purpose the promotion of clean sport and the elevation of motorcycling in general. All the clubs and prominent dealers will be there and all motorcycle riders, whether affiliated or not with any club, are cordially invited to participate.

Arrangements have been made for accommodations and special rates at the Pismo Inn and Tent City.

RICKENBACKER CAR IS MOVING THRILL

W. H. Hooper & Co. Has Waiting List of Customers

A Glendale Daily Press reporter dropped in on Wm. H. Hooper & Co., local distributors for the Rickenbacker, the other day, and was unwise enough to ask, "Well, how's business?"

"Business!" says Hooper. "Use your eyes. If you're looking for a ride in the Rickenbacker, like everybody else, you'll have to get in line!"

A moment later the reporter became aware of a beautiful car standing beside him. The car had slid in so silently that he was unaware of its presence. It was a Rickenbacker.

And out of that car stepped three passengers who had been for a little ride with S. B. Kellogg, Hooper's sales manager. And all three started right in to sell the reporter a Rickenbacker, while Kellogg sat back and let them rave.

"The truth is," says Kellogg, "that before I get my passengers to the next corner, they are trying to sell me the car. Never have I seen such spontaneous enthusiasm prompted by anything in any line as that which springs up in those who take a ride in the Rickenbacker. And by the time I have glided my passengers along the road for a mile or two, slid them up a few hills, and slipped silently back to headquarters again, they get out fairly bursting with enthusiasm."

"Yes, sir," says Hooper, "We've taken out some of the hardest old rocks in the country, men who are famous for never showing anything more than a mere mild interest in living, men in whom you could not imagine such a thing as enthusiasm, and they get out of the Rickenbacker with eyes dancing and arms waving with enthusiasm. Our only cause for anxiety is that before very long we will not be able to get cars enough to satisfy the demand."

Kellogg says that prospects are pretty thoroughly sold by the time they have gone over half of the mechanical points of the car, and the car's beauty speaks for itself, but a ride literally takes their breath away.

"We are taking as many people as possible for a ride, regardless of whether they are in the market for a car or not," Mr. Kellogg says, "because it does us worlds of good just to have those people go away such vehement boosters for our car. In the minds of those who have ridden in the Rickenbacker, the two words Automobile and Rickenbacker seem to have become synonymous. That's the finest advertising in the world."

Wm. H. Hooper & Co. now have two demonstrators available, and this next week plan to take as many as possible of Glendale's business men for a ride in the cars, not with a view of selling them the Rickenbacker, but just to show them the truth of their contention that they have "the goin'est automobile on wheels!" Many Glendale citizens, then, are due for a surprise this week, according to Hooper.

WITH BUICK AND GAS MRS. AYERS SHOWS PACE

Chairman Reception Committee Women's Clubs, Makes Record Run

Mrs. Kathleen Ayers is a great booster for gasoline service stations. Mrs. Ayers is the woman who last week broke the San Francisco-Portland record by piloting her four cylinder Buick coupe between these cities in 22 hours and 43 minutes. Her time cut down the best previous motor car record by 3 hours and 8 minutes, and bested the Southern Pacific's crack train, "The Shasta," by 5 hours, 47 minutes.

Mrs. Ayers, in describing her record-beating run, was particularly generous in her praise of the Standard Oil Company's Service Stations along the road. Stops were made at Corning and Roseburg for Red Crown and Zerelene and prompt attention given by the service station attendants cut many minutes off the running time. "And minutes are valuable little things, especially in establishing records," said Mrs. Ayers.

The Buick's record is official in every respect, as the coupe and its nervy little driver were checked out of San Francisco and in at Portland by members of the press in both cities, while the timing was done by officials of the Western Union Telegraph Company.

Mrs. Ayers is Chairman of the Reception Committee of the California Federation of Business Women's Clubs for their convention to be held in San Francisco June 22, 23 and 24. She made the trip by way of showing that the women of today can keep pace with the men.

Steel parts of a car, which are unpainted, may be nicely polished with a paste made by mixing soap and fine emery powder. This will remove any rust that may have formed, and will leave the surface smooth and without a scratch.

STANDARD GARAGE MAKES GOOD ON CARS

Fer. and Web. Develop Big Reputation for Repairs

You've been hearing of "Ferg." and "Web.," the boys down at the Standard garage, for the past several months, but the question is, "Have you tried them out when you have automobile trouble?" Quite a large number of the car owners of Glendale have, and have found them to be real mechanics that can be relied upon at all times to do as they say they will. Nothing is so aggravating as to have the garage man promise to have the car ready in time for you to use for some particular function, only to find that "it isn't quite done" at the appointed time.

The boys at the Standard garage make a specialty of promptness. They do not take a job unless they are sure they can have it ready at the designated time. In addition to this, the boys turn out nothing but the highest class of work. They know how to produce the goods and they endeavor in connection with every job to produce it.

Make regular inspection of the wiring for loose connections and see that the insulation is not worn at any place. If worn, be sure to tape the worn part, or still better, replace with new wire.

END OF TRAIL MOTORCADE HUGE

400 Automobiles With 1000 Passengers Will Make Trip North

A caravan of about 400 automobiles laden with more than a thousand eager sightseers, traveling in single file on a 500-mile, 2-day de luxe motor tour between Los Angeles and San Francisco. The foregoing describes the great motor caravan scheduled to leave Los Angeles on Monday morning, May 29, to provide unique entertainment for the realtors coming to California this year to participate in the annual convention of the National Real Estate Association, the opening session of which, in the Bay City, is set for May 31.

This caravan will be unique in the motor annals of Southern California. It is a trip which appeals as strongly to the motorcar dealer as to the realtor because it will afford a wonderful opportunity to display the merits of all makes of cars. Los Angeles automobile men, in fact, are stirring themselves with marked zeal to have their particular cars represented in the line-up, and from local motordom will probably be drawn a majority of the 400 or more cars which will make this spectacular tour.

Do not fail to observe the caution signs placed on the roads by automobile clubs and associations—there is a reason for them being there.

The Most Wonderful Motor Car Value in the World

VIRTUE OF HILLS IS EXTOLLED BY MONARCH CO.

Everyone Is Moving Out Into the Open Says Manager Butts

VIRTUE OF HILL Sat Autos ..

"As the years wear away the people of the country are realizing more and more the true value of the trip to the hills," said Mr. Butts of the Monarch Auto Supply company, 121 South Brand boulevard, this morning. "Especially is this true with the motorists of Southern California. The wonderful roads that are to be found in this section are in a great measure responsible for the motorist realizing the value of the 'open country.'

"There is hardly a canyon of any importance into which the highway system of California does not extend. These mountain roads wend their ways deep into the heart of the hills, winding around this knoll and over that cliff—always pressing farther back, back into the wilds. It is, therefore, simply a question of 'keeping to the road.' True, there are hundreds of points on the mountain roads of Southern California where to drive a foot or two from the road would mean disaster, but, taken all in all, mountain driving is just as safe as is piloting a machine in the city.

"We have tried to enlarge our stock so as to be able to care for all the needs of the motorist-camper during the present camping season. We think we have accomplished this result. At all times we are glad to demonstrate our camping features, there being absolutely no obligation to buy. In other words, 'It is no trouble to show goods.'"

FIRST CLASS BAT IS FIRST NEED OF CAR

So Says Psenner of Electric Company of Glendale, Who Knows

"Nothing adds so much to the pleasure of an automobile trip as does a battery that is in first-class condition," said Mr. Psenner of the Psenner & Doll Electric company, corner Chestnut and Brand boulevard, this morning. "When you know that your battery and all its connections are 'working right' you can skim along the highways with a feeling of assurance that can come from nothing but a 'healthy battery.'"

The Psenner & Doll company handles the Philadelphia battery in Glendale. Since being introduced in Glendale this battery has made thousands of staunch friends. It has demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt that it will stand up under the most strenuous treatment. In addition to handling this battery, these boys repair and rebuild all makes of batteries, and take care of everything in the way of ignition trouble. They know their business and they apply it to every job.

3007 MILES OF NEW HIGHWAY NOW READY

By the end of the present fiscal year California will have completed around 3007 miles of its state highway program, or about half the mileage incorporated in the state system by the various bond and legislative acts pertaining to highways. In addition to this 3007 miles, are 946 miles of special appropriation roads which are not included in the list of completed highways. Some of these 946 miles are equal to the state highway standard for finished roads, but the majority will need radical reconstruction. The total mileage in the state system for both building and maintenance is over 6300 miles or close to 10 per cent of all dedicated public roads in the state, exclusive of incorporated cities.

Of the 3007 miles built by the California Highway Commission, 1785 miles are concrete base roads, with or without asphaltic surfacing; 305 miles are paved roads of other types and 937 miles are graded roads.

Since January 1 of this year, the commission has contracted for 103 miles of new construction; forty-six miles of gravel surfacing, and thirty miles of asphalt surfacing. Its program for the year calls for $15,000,000 in new highway construction.

During 1921 average costs for the different types of roads were roughly as follows:

Graded roads, $12,000 per mile.
Bituminized macadam, $21,000 per mile.
Concrete base, $30,000 per mile.
Bituminous pavement, $24,000 per mile.

The total expenditures of the department to April 1, 1922, exclusive of motor vehicle funds, which are used almost exclusively for maintenance, amounts to $52,646,084, and the estimated unobligated balance available from all sources, exclusive of motor vehicle funds, is $33,700,000. At the present rate of construction these funds will be largely obligated during 1922 and 1923.

WHY ARE CARS LIKE RATTLE SNAKES?

The Older They Are the More Noise They Make

Rattles are annoying. The difficulty with rattles about the car is not to cure them but to find them. In other words, almost any rattle can be remedied easily enough, but it is hard to find exactly where the annoying sound is coming from. Suppose we examine some of the commoner places in which rattles develop.

In the first place neglected grease cups are frequently responsible for most annoying squeaks, which are hard to find. Keep all the grease cups filled and turned down and one source of trouble will be obviated.

Another frequent offender is the stove bolt which holds the fender in place. These bolts often work loose and allow the fender to weave against the frame, giving out a metallic squeak that is very annoying. The cure is obvious, keep the bolts tight and if need be put spring washers behind them.

Radiator bolts often work loose and this applies not only to the nuts at the top, but the one on the rod holding the hood in place. Loose lamps are a common seat of rattles and such parts as horns which are attached to the chassis. The bolts which hold the engine to the frame sometimes come loose and when they do they impart a roaring to the sound of the engine, which is almost unmistakable.

Rattles in the brake linkage and other parts underneath the chassis are best located by someone standing on the runningboard while the car is coasting in neutral.

Body squeaks are prevented by most manufacturers by using anti-squeak material between the body and the metal upon which it rests. This material is designed to prevent contact between the two metals, but if it wears out, of course, the metal of the body touches the metal of the frame and squeaks result.

The hood or bonnet clip is the seat of squeaks that are difficult to locate. If this part is found to be offending a squirt of oil will silence it. Windshield rattles are easy to locate and the cure is obvious, simply tightening. The top, on the other hand, can house more rattles and squeaks that defy detection than any other part of the car. A little oil applied wherever the metal work comes against metal, is about the best remedy for this.

The noises that we have touched upon here are the rattles and squeaks of body and chassis and not the mechanical noises of the engine and mechanism. Just by the way, however, and lest we forget, let us recall that improperly adjusted tappets, knocks in connecting rod and main bearings, leaky exhaust, carbon knocks, piston slaps, etc., etc., can all be obviated by care beforehand. Lubrication, plentiful and correct, is the cure beforehand. Get oil to any place where metal rubs on metal, whether it be in the gears or on the frame, and you are curing noises before they get a chance to develop.

DISSIPATED TIRES STAGGER UNDER LOAD

So Says Jellison of the J. & K. Garage on South Brand

Tires, it has been claimed, lose vitality through dissipation in much the same manner as men and with much the same severity of consequence.

Using this analogy as a source of inspiration for earnest caution to present day tire users, Mr. Jellison of the J. & K. garage, 1004-6 South Brand, says:

"Practically all tires received by the big manufacturers for adjustment are prematurely aged and give unanimous evidence of squandered vitality. Yet proper care in the hands of their owners would have enabled many of these pneumatics to 'live to a ripe old age.'

"The best preserved tires, like men of which the same thing can be said, are the ones whose strength has been safeguarded. Dissipation of the strength and vitality built into a tire will quickly scrap it.

"And this conservation requires more of the motorist than the mere observance of the rules of careful driving, proper tire inflation, and the like. It demands immediate attention to the diseases which may fall to the lot of even the best of pneumatics. Tread cuts that invite water seepage and the resultant damage of separated fabric layers and disintegration through decay, should be plugged when first discovered.

"The vulcanizer is the surgeon without whose expert attention abused tires would soon die, figuratively speaking. And real conservation of tire life cannot be observed completely by the motorist without proper reliance on the tire doctor."

The J. K. garage retails the United States, Goodyear and Keaton non-skid, and wholesales and retails the Victor tire. This company also carries rims and rim parts for all makes of machines for the entire San Fernando valley.

Caring for a car is more than a mere matter of keeping it filled with gas, oil and water.

VENTURA RESORTS CHARM OAKLAND AGENTS

Max Green Knows How to Reach Them and Why

The different Ventura river mountain resorts constantly beckon to the motorist-angler, according to Mr. Green of the firm of Green C McClellan, Glendale Oakland agents, 115 West Harvard street, who goes on to tell how to get to these resorts.

"The Calabasas and Chatsworth routes to Ventura both lead out of the San Fernando valley, and from that point follow a paved highway to within a mile or less of Nordhoff in the charming Ojai valley. A turn to the left marks the road to Matilija Hot Springs and Lyons Springs on the Ventura river, and Wheeler's Hot Springs on a branch of the same stream.

"It is about an even hundred miles from Glendale to Wheeler's or Matilija, which are only a few miles apart.

"Above Matilija is Lyons, a pretty picnic spot on the banks of the river. Reports are to the effect that the trout fishing here will be excellent this season. Fishermen are laying in wait for the opening of the season there, at any event, and those who go after trout on the Ventura river on the first day will do well to bring their own rocks, as all of the regular rocks will undoubtedly be occupied by sun-up.

To vary the trip, the following route is suggested: Returning from Nordhoff, the new grade east of town was followed through the Upper Ojai valley and down the Santa Paula Mountain Springs, another resort, coming out of the hills at Santa Paula.

From Santa Paula the return to Los Angeles is by way of Fillmore and Saugus. All of the road on this trip is paved except a few miles above Nordhoff into the canyon and part of the road between Nordhoff and Santa Paula. None of the road is bad, though there are a few rough places.

SAY IT SOMEHOW SAYS WESTERN AUTO SUPPLY

Its Giant Spark Plug Wins Letter From Washington Man

"Say it with flowers" is a good slogan for the florist, and doubtless the sweethearts and wives who receive the bouquets think that a wonderful way for their husbands and lovers to express their feelings of affection. But there are times when 'what is said' is more important than 'how it is said,' and those who receive a good word for the product they sell are the people who don't care so much about how the appreciation is expressed as they do about the message itself.

The other day a letter came to the office of the Western Auto Supply Company in Los Angeles, from a man in the stat of Washington, that, as a letter, was not fine Spencerian style, nor was it full of useless words. Probably the writer of the letter was more accustomed to handling heavier tools than pens, because the writing was a little rough and irregular, but that letter got a hearty reception at the office of the big company, and a carefully written letter of appreciation went out from the office to the man on his ranch in Washington.

The letter said this: "Maybe you would like to know what I think about the Western Giant Spark plugs. I put a set in my Ford car six years ago. I wore out that Ford and transferred the spark plugs to another car and now, at the end of six years, they are still in use and giving good service!" Nothing fancy about that but it tells a story of satisfactory service from a product that has been sold by this big auto supply house for a long term of years on the Pacific Coast, and it gave a good deal of satisfaction to the men who have put their efforts into building a supply house where auto owners could get high-quality supplies for their automobiles, for less money. There is a big file of letters like that in the office of the company, each one expressing, in its own peculiar way, a message that means more to the personnel of the company than some of the bouquets of life that are beautifully expressed but do not tell a real story.

AUTOS AND MOVIES GO HAND IN HAND

The motion-picture industry, of which Los Angeles is the recognized center, depends almost entirely upon motorized equipment for the transportation of acting personnel, workmen and material required in the filming of pictures. Climate and scenic environment have made this city the center of this tremendously important industry, and the motor vehicle is almost as important to its success as is the financing of its operations.

If it were not for the automobile and the truck, the filming of pictures, particularly those requiring certain scenic environment, would be almost out of the question, because of the expense incident to and the impracticability of transporting people and material to and from the studios. In fact, were it not for the motor vehicle, many a scenario would not have been written because of the utter impracticability of screening the writer's story.

A visit to the many studios from Hollywood to Culver City, or a trip to location, will demonstrate the important part this class of equipment plays in the industry. In and around the larger plants, cars are parked by the scores, for the use of officials, players, extras and workmen. Stars of greater or lesser degree, actors and actresses whose income is far less pretentious, as well as hundreds of workmen in the various departments of the studios travel to and from their homes by automobile. Materials for settings are hauled from stores and depots to studios by truck and from studios to location and return by the same method.

On Location

Locations selected in many an almost inaccessible scenic environment are reached by the ever-ready automobile and the truck. Whole companies leave Los Angeles bound for a stay of several days in some place far from the railroad, and everything is transported by motor equipment. As, one moving-picture official remarked: "The outomobile and the truck are just as necessary to the filming of pictures as are the people in the casts. As the business is conducted today, in many instances, one is just as important as the other."

To prevent oil from flowing into the combustion chamber when there is a partial vacuum formed, is to relieve the vacuum and the only way to provide uniformly high compression regardless of the engine lad, speed and throttle setting, is to fill the cylinder uniformly full of compressible air and gas at all loads.

Sediment, scale and rust in the cells of the radiator and the water jackets of the cylinders will interfere seriously with the circulation of the water.

Water introduced into the cylinder of a motor vehicle engine will show an effect, more or less pronounced, first, upon the cooling; second, the lubrication; third, the quality of the mixture, or the power in the fuel actually delivered as power and fifth, upon the cart deposit.

Some motorists carry a brick part of the car's equipment, as emergency block when stalled a hill.

SPARK TRANSMISSION

Closed Core Transformer

a closed core transformer the gnetic circuit is strengthened increased by making the core the form of a angle so that lines of force not com- ed to pass ough the air complete the uit. The pri- y is wound one leg of core, while secondary is ed on the op- ite one, the e itself con- ing of lam- tions of soft iron which are embled after the coils are put place. The primary is excited the alternating current, usually volts, and as this current is stantly rising and falling in ength and changing in direc- n, the core is being magnetized demagnetised at the same fre- ncy so that no interuppter is essary. For instance we will ume that there is 110 volts and cycle alternating current flow- through the primary. This ses the magnetic flux to alter- e through the core 120 times second, inducing a similar mber of alternations in the cur- t which is set up in the sec- ary winding. But as this wind- consists of a great number of ns of wire, the voltage of the uced current is very much ater than that flowing into the mary, the ratio being directly portional to the ratio of the ondary turns to the primary ns; therefore, while the pri- y voltage is 110, the secondary tage may be 10,000 to 50,000 ts, The lowest poetential now ployed commercially is 10,000 ts, for spark transmission. hile the voltage has thus been mendously increased, the cur- nt has been decreased in the me proportion. For example, if ampers are sent through the mary at 110 volts and the sec- dary voltage is 10,000, there will only 0.011 amperes in the sec- dary circuit. The number of tts of energy is the same, bar- g transformer losses, but the ltage and current factors have been altered to suit the requirements. If the secondary voltage were 100,000 there would then be 0.011 ampere of current, the product of the two in any case representing the amount of energy sent into the primary. A familiar analogy is that of steam in a boiler containing 10 cubic feet of steam at 100 pounds pressure per square inch would be the equivalent of one cubic foot at 1000 pounds pressure per square inch; either would perform the same work.

Open Core and Magnetic Leakage Transformers

While the induction coil is no longer employed to any great extent in radio transmission, except for commercial emergency sets and amateurs stations, its counterpart, the open core transformer supplied with current from the A. C. generator, is still used. As only part of the magnetic circuit is formed of this iron type, there is little mutual induction between the primary and secondary windings and the self-induction of the primary therefore remains practically constant, so that this class of transformer will draw practically the same amount of current whether the secondary be on open or on short circuit. This characteristic is sometimes given a transformer of the closed core type by providing what is known as a magnetic leakage gap, this gap often being made adjustable. The opening thus provided does not interfere with the magnetic flux from the primary to the secondary, but the magnetic reaction of the secondary, known as mutual induction, is dissapated through this gap so that the variations in the secondary load, such as are caused by the operation of the wireless sending key, do not affect the self-induction of the primary. The open core type is not as efficient as the closed core type owing to the fact that air forms such as a large part of the magnetic circuit and the ratio of the transformation is, therefore, not in direct proportion to the difference in the number of turns in the windings. To offset this, the secondary of this type of transformer is usually wound with a greater number of turns to make up for the magnetic leakage.

WITH THE RADIO CLUB AND SCHOOL

A few words in regard to the affiliation of the radio club with the Southern California Radio Association in order that we may have the proper recognition in times of need. By affiliating with this association if there is any debate in congress as to the right of the amateur, we may have a vote which will be recognized at Washington. Also by becoming affiliated with this association we increase their membership so that we will have one of the largest associations on the west coast. Then again fellows, you want to get better organized and talk over the traffic regulations. Also to appoint a representative among yourselves who is capable of tuning an amateur station properly, and who can go from station to station and tune it up or see that they are properly tuned. There is no excuse at all for some of the amateurs being heard on 9000 meters or even 300 meters. The most of the nearby amateurs are fairly well tuned with the exception of two or three. Now these two or three can cause you all trouble as a whole for just remember that you don't own the air and that at present the air regulations are controlled by the government and they will probably always be. So get busy and tune. This is a matter for the club itself to take up and not for the school but I have written these few words merely as a suggestion. Theory class Monday night. Code class on Wednesday and theory on Friday.

WOULDN'T IT BE GREAT? IF:

Predicts Radio Will Soon Control the Rain

Marconi, when asked if rainfall could be drawn by Radio, said that there was a possibility of this being done. Many people caught out in a summer shower have experienced a downpour immediately after a bolt of lightning. "Efforts have been made by Radio on a large scale to produce the same results," says Marconi. "But I found that my plans were received with skepticism. We undoubtedly will accomplish this wonder some day and then we will become the lords and masters of life on this planet. We will be able then to obtain any amount of power almost without effort. All the work will be done by the sun, man will merely press the button.

"The development of water power and of the Radio transmission of electrical energy produced by water power will become exporters of electrical energy to less fortunately situated countries."

Condensers Needed to Use Light Wire

WASHINGTON, D. C.—If you do any experimenting in power-line broadcasting, as explained by Major General Geo. O. Squier, don't try to connect up with the electric lines without using condensers. If you do, you will short circuit the lights, blow out fuses and perhaps ruin your instruments. Referring to his recent demonstration of wired-wireless broadcasting locally over a city's electric system, General Squier pointed out the necessity of using condensers to avoid short circuiting. He explained to the writer that an ordinary transmitter and receiver are used, connections being made by a suitable plug in a light socket, and may be connected to the power line in various ways, but the preferred method provides for the installation of condensers between the mains acting as by passes for the high-frequency currents only, permitting the power current, direct or alternating but of low frequency, to flow along. For the Radio, the two mains are connected in parallel and used as one conductor, the ground being a return. Good results may be obtained by connecting the transmitter and receivers between the mains suitably protected by condensers to keep the large power current from passing through the Radio apparatus, he says.

The advantages of using line Radio for local broadcasting on light wires saves the erection of aerials, leaves the ether open for long distance communication, eliminates interference and permits an unlimited number of messages to be sent on different wave lengths.

"It is hard to realize the vast possibilities of this method of broadcasting," the General said, but judging from the universal interest in the preliminary announcement, it is fair to suppose that the system will come into general use quickly."

Pay Your Penny Take Your Choice

With Radio telephony in its present stage, it only remains for some enterprising person to open public Radiophone booths, wherein any citizen may drop a coin and "listen in." He could choose his entertainment from the daily schedules, which need by no means be limited to music but might include press dispatches, baseball bulletins, prize fights by rounds, and election returns. Those who have no home radio receivers will undoubtedly soon have the privilege of renting one temporarily when desirous of "hearing" what is in the air. It is an opportunity for some genius to combine a nickle-in-the-slot machine with Radio receiving set.

Rumor has it that certain Chicagoans are organizing a company for the manufacture of nickel-in-the-slot" Rariophone receivers. It is planned to install the sets in drug and confectionery stores and other gathering places. One can get baseball reports, market reports or concerts by dropping a coin in the slot and placing the receivers to the ears.

RADIWOE!

Florence G. Rogers

I dare not whisper in your ear
Sweet words of dripping honey;
Now that the world is listening in
'Twould grin a vast, expansive grin
As though 'twere something funny.

I dare not lift my voice in song
To fondly sing your praises;—
A listening ear's in every home,
And raucous voices on the phone
Would bid me go to blazes.

To tell my love without a sound
One last resort still lingers;—
Since radio has freed the air,
And everything's heard everywhere,
I'll talk love on my fingers.

Operated Over 4,200 Miles

Through the daily operation of its Cavite station to Honolulu, a distance of about 4,200 miles, which has maintained a 24-hour a day service for some time, the United States Navy believes it holds a record. Using a 500-kw., arc-transmitter, even San Francisco has heard Cavit's messages. When it does, Honolulu is notified and does not relay the message, as is ordinarily done, in transmitting 7,000 miles over the Pacific.

Recruiting by Radio

The Army Air Service recruiting station at Mitchell Field, N. Y. has adopted a novel plan of recruiting by radiotelephone. A broadcasting message calling for recruits for the Air Service was sent out recently and letters are being received from far and wide, in reply. The latest response came from an applicant in Buffalo, New York. By means of radio and other facilities, twenty-eight recruits were secured.

Wave Music Calms Patient of Dentist

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—The composer, Charles Gilbert Spross, had a tooth that called for some attention. While in a dentist chair he had the unusual experience of hearing by Radio one of his own songs sung by Miss Anna Case. It soothed him while the dentist drilled. The dentist claimed that it was easy for a patient to take gas to the strains of Italian opera or a Brahm's lullaby. It helped a lot, too, during the process of completing crowns when the Radiophone rendered "Look for the Silver Lining."

BEING OUT OF SEASON

"Of course, you'll wish to hear all about the wonderful gay times I am having here in the city," wrote Ellen Gillmore to her sister at home in the country. "First I must tell you that there was not a delegation of anxious friends waiting at the station to meet me. Perhaps that isn't done any more. But I was well taken care of, for Mrs. Leigh's chauffeur discovered me in the crowd and welcomed me warmly, alluding pleasantly to the hospitality we had shown him last summer when he wrove the Leighs up to Hickory Dock.

" 'Mrs. Leigh has an engagement this afternoon and she said I was either to take you anywhere you wished to go, or drive you right home,' he said as he wrapped the rug about me in the limousine.

" 'Thank you. I think I had perhaps better go right to the house, Harris,' I said, thinking it would be a good chance to unpack and press my clothes if they needed it, so as to be ready for any entertainment that should present itself. I asked the maid for an electric iron, and got every little wrinkle erased from my wardrobe in short order. Then I called up Lillian Armsby to tell her the glad news of my arrival.

" 'Why, Ellen, she exclaimed, 'what a delightful surprise! Yes, of course, I remember now you wrote that you were coming, but I had no idea you'd be here so soon. I must see you.' Let me think. Dear me, I don't believe I have a minute free this week. Well, we must try for lunch together some day next week. I suppose, dear, you'll be as full of engagements as everybody always is in this widly busy town.' Then she asked sweetly for you, and I haven't heard from her since. It just occurs to me that when she comes to the lake next summer she will need a complete rest.

"Mrs. Leigh came home just before dinner and was lovely as ever. She has taken me about to several of her clubs and to the meetings of her hospital board and her civic league, and it's all been intensely interesting. She has many activities in which I cannot share, but she is a dear and she has done all she could to add to my pleasure.

"When Tom English called up and said he wished to take me somewhere I was afraid he would suggest the show Mrs. Leigh had taken me to. But he didn't

" 'There's a wonderful new soprano in our church,' he said to me. 'I want you to hear her, Ellen. I think she'll make grand opera one of these days, and then it will be something for you to say that you heard her when she first broke into the big city. Will you go with me on Sunday morning to hear her?"

" 'Sorry, Tom,' I said gently, 'but I have to go to the Church of the Beatitudes with Mrs. Leigh.'

" 'Oh, pshaw, is that so? Well, I'm terribly disappointed, for I did wish you to hear this young soprano. She's a nightengale, all right. I'll try to call some night soon and hear all about the good people up at the lake.' What say you, sister, dear; shall we get up any more Welsh rabbit parties for dear old Tom?

"On Thursday Mr. Westerly 'phoned me to say that he would like to call if convenient, and Mrs. Leigh told me to ask him to come to dinner, which he did. He and Mr. Leigh discovered they had business interests in common, and I think he had a beautiful time getting acquainted with such a successful and kindly person in his own line. We talked but little together until Mr. Leigh excused himself late in the evening. Then Mr. Westerly mentioned appreciatively all the good times we had given him at Hickory Dock, and he said he was looking forward to passing his whole month of vacation at the lake next summer.

" 'Do you know,' he said as he was leaving, 'I want you to go with me, if you'll be so good, Miss Gillmore.' I pricked up my ears intently, with just a tiny thought of the grand opera way back in my mind. 'That is, if you have time,' he continued. 'I want you to go with me to those prehistoric mounds near your place some day next summer. It's not an awfully long walk from Hickory Dock, is is? And I am sure you who have grown up there will be able to show them to me as nobody else could. Shall we make it a date?"

" 'Don't you think," I asked laughingly, 'that it's rather early for making dates for summer?"

" 'Perhaps it is early,' he returned quite unabashed, 'but I shall count on you just the same.'

"You'll be glad to know, sister, dear, that all the pretty evening frocks you helped me make are in perfect order. They're just as new as they were when you put them in my trunk. You see, I have not needed any party clothes at all, for I've found that I am out of season here. I am merely a reminiscence of summer, so I am going home. Tell Jack to have my skates sharpened, and ask Bud if he'll meet me at the junction."

FRISK SQCIRRELS PA WS HAVE TO SWIM

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

Poor little Frisk Squirrel! Had those foolish little paws taken him into trouble again? That's what they had. They'd carried him up to his middle in the water of Chips Beaver Pond. They'd reached his precious feather that he had stolen from Bobby Robin's tail, and the wind had stolen from him. He had it safe in his mouth, sticking out of each side like the fiercest, stiffest, spottiest whiskers ever a squirrel wore. But he wasn't safe himself.

Or was he? Now he had that lovely crest he'd been hankering after to help him swim. But he didn't have it where he thought it ought to be, on the back of his head, like Daddy Green-Crest's. Still, he had it. Come what might, he didn't mean to lose it.

What did come was a tricky little wave the wind stirred up. Perhaps it wanted that feather to play with. Anyway it tried to snatch back the precious thing. But it had to take Frisk with it. 'Cause he wouldn't let go—not he. Slap! The wave cuffed him right in his little fat 'tummy—which is the meanest place in the world to hit any one. He tried to dig his claws in the shifty sand so he could turn around and walk to shore on them. Slip-slap! Another wave caught him in his tickly ribs. And the wind gave his robin feather whiskers a jerk into the bargain. Whoop! There he slipped; his hind feet were sliding right out from under him——

Um-mm! Wasn't it lucky both Tad Coon and Daddy Duck were right handy by to rescue him again? Just up on the bank, still talking to Bobby. Not paying any attention to that rascally baby. How careless of them. But he couldn't call for fear his feather would get away from him.

He put up his nose as high as ever he could. He knew what the wind was trying to do; it was trying to make the water choke him so he would have to let go. He wasn't thinking about his paws. They were trying to climb just exactly as if he were climbing up a limb, front and hind ones, both. Pit-pat, scritchy-scratch, splish-splash! All of a sudden he began to squeal with excitement, "M-mm! M-mm! M-h m-m-m g!" Which meant, "Look! Look! I'm swimming!

And so he was! For once those paws had learned that if they could take him into trouble they could take him out again. All the way out! And by the time they got him back on the beach Tad and Daddy Green-crest and the other little bird that precious tail feather had belonged to were all watching him. And even Bobby was chirping with enthusiasm.

NEXT STORY—WHY WHISK'S FEATHER HELPED HIM SWIM.

"M-mm! M-mm! M-hm-m-mg!" which means, "Look! Look! I'm swimming!"

UNIVERSITY WINS PRIZE FOR EGGS

Word has been received by J. E. Dougherty, associate professor of poultry husbandry, University of California, that the two plates of eggs entered by the university in the Purdue University egg show, won first and third ribbons. The blue ribbon was for a plate of 12 brown eggs and third prize was on white eggs. These eggs were entered in the experiment station class and were selected by Mr. S. S. Gossman of the poultry division staff.

The Purdue egg show is held annually in early May by the poultry department of the Indiana Agricultural college at Purdue university. The first show was held 14 years ago and has grown until it is acknowledged to be the leading egg show in America.

MEMORIAL DAY SERVICES IN TUJUNGA

Sunday Services at the Community Church; Legion Exercises

TUJUNGA. May 27.—Memorial Sunday will be observed here with special services in the churches, and Tuesday, Memorial Day, with ceremonies by Post 250, American Legion.

The morning services at the Community church will be in special honor of veterans of the Civil and World wars. Veterans who would be unable to attend the services otherwise will be called for if word is left with Rev. Wieman, Rev. Statts, or with Miss Gilbert at the Gift Shop. Rev. Wieman is to be the speaker.

American Legion ceremonies on Tuesday will begin at 9:30 at Legion hall with a formal flag raising. Delegations from the different churches, the schools, members of Post 250 in uniform and Boy Scout troop 1 of Tujunga will then proceed to the new cemetery, where ceremonies will be continued by members of the G. A. R. Addresses will be made and the grave of Father Wornum, the first in the cemetery, will be decorated.

Record Has Records

A branch of the Glendale Music company has been established in Tujunga in the Verdugo Hills Record building, and will be under the management of the owners of the Record. The new shop opens this afternoon and evening and records may be heard and selected. The shop will be open until 7:30 p. m. on Saturday evenings. Records, Victrolas, musical instruments and sheet music will be supplied at the same prices that are in effect in Glendale. A special feature will be the giving of free lessons by Wm. Bode of Glendale with the purchase of any of the several models of saxophones.

Cabaret Dance Tonight

A cabaret dance under the auspices of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the American Legion is to be given tonight in Legion hall. Probably the most novel decorations ever used in the hall have been arranged with a futuristic background and several unusual features have been provided for the entertainment of the guests.

Extra good music has been provided, and dancing will be enjoyed throughout the evening. Refreshments will be served during the dancing.

Valley Bank to Receive

The Tujunga Valley bank will hold a reception tonight in its new building at the corner of Monte Vista and Sunset boulevards and officers and directors have extended an invitation to the people of the valley to inspect the bank's new quarters. Work has been rushed during the past week in order that opening night be made on schedule time, and business will be transacted in the new location on Monday morning.

To please others an artist must first please himself—but he must be hard to please.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE FAR WAYS

Strange ways we tread to find the joys that bless
Strange pathways we must fare;
I found a friend one time in loneliness,
Nor had I dreamed him there.

Before, I walked where laughter was and light,
Where grief and pain were not,
But it was not till darkness and the night
I found the friend I sought.

Dark was the way I went along and seemed
The night would never end.
But when the night was darkest brightly gleamed
A light—I found my friend.

I sought the spirit, Peace, for many a day,
Till days became the years;
Nor found her till one time I went the way
Where Sorrow walked with tears.

Nor was there rest to find on land or sea,
When I was guest of Ease, but
Toil said: "Come and strive with me,
And then shalt thou have rest."

So there was friend in my vast loneliness,
And Sorrow came and blessed
My soul with peace and Toil alone could bless
My tortured soul with rest.

And once I longed for Dawn with glow and light
And all the darkness gone.
And Pity said: "If we have not the night,
How shall we have the dawn?"

Factors in Personality

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

(Copyright, 1922, by The Associated Newspapers.)

The increasing tendency in certain scientific quarters to regard the ductless glands as the chief determinants of character is not without the support of experimental evidence. Any one reading with an unprejudiced mind such a book as Berman's "The Glands Regulating Personality" must concede this.

But, as Berman himself makes very clear, gland action in its turn is affected by factors other than the innate strength or weakness of the various glands. Thus we find him remarking, in the course of a description of the glands as constituting the essential nature of man and giving every man his start in life:

"Afterward food, the routine of his existence, the accidents of experience, education, disease and misfortune—in short, environment—modify him because they modify his ductless glands and his vegetative apparatus as well as his brain."

Obviously, if the environment enters to determine the action of the ductless glands, environment must be accepted as somewhat superior to the glands as a personality forming factor. And another point which endocrine devotees tend to overlook is the influence exercised on the glands by intellectual and emotional habits.

The adrenals, to recall, are regarded as the courage-developing glands. Strong adrenals are represented as productive of bravery and aggressiveness. And the thyroid, likewise, is held to determine such traits as are summed up in the words energetic, alert and vigorous.

But the body-mind relationship is never one-sided. There is always an interaction. And just as bodily conditions are known to affect mental states, so do mental states have an affective influence on all the bodily organism.

Suppose, then, that faulty training in early life establishes a habit of timidity, coupled with a habitually uninterested life attitude. Will this be without effect on the functioning of the adrenals and the thyroid?

On the contrary, it may have a most detrimental effect. Experiments such as those made at Harvard university by Professor W. B. Cannon a few years ago go to show that, in the case of the adrenals, a habitual fear attitude means an over-stimulation of the glands, with an eventual weakening.

Similarly, in the case of the thyroid, there is reason to believe that training rather than inborn thyroid deficiency is responsible for much of the laziness and apathy evident among men. Certainly, we know that serious thyroid disease, involving thyroid over-functioning, may have its origin in faulty mental and emotional states—else thyroid disease would not be curable, as it sometimes is, by psychic means alone.

In other words, the old saying, "As a man thinks, so is he," remains true today, notwithstanding the discoveries and the claims of endocrine enthusiasts. If the manner of a man's thinking is frequently traceable to the way his glands work, the working of the latter may be just as truly traceable to the manner of the thinking.

And because of the conditioning effects of environment, training, habit, etc., people certainly should not take too seriously the endocrinists 'idea that they may some day have it in their power to regulate arbitrarily the development of personality.

Those Breakdowns

By H. ADDINGTON BRUCE

Author of "The Riddle of Personality," "Self-Development," Etc.

He was less tanh thirty, but pretty much of a nervous wreck. He slept badly, he could not concentrate his attention, for some weeks he had been rtoubled every morning with unaccountable attacks of nausea.

They were, at any rate, unaccountable to him and the doctor whom he consulted could not find in the condition of his stomach anything to account for them. But neither could he find in his patient's general organic condition anything to account for the symptoms that troubled him.

"Are you worried about something?" the doctor then demanded.

"Not at all."

"Do you like the work at which you are employed?"

"Yes," somewhat hesitatingly.

"What is the matter with it?"

"Why, nothing. Only"—in a burst of confidence—"I don't feel that I am doing it as well as I should. And, besides, I don't feel that it offers me any real chance for advancement."

"So that, after all, you are worried? My advice to you is to go to some superior official in your place of business and tell him frankly what is on your mind. If you find that there is reason for your worry, come back to me."

The patient did come back, but only to report that he had been worrying needlessly. He had learned that he had real opportunity for promotion. No fault was being found with his work. And already he had begun to feel infinitely better.

"Exactly," quoth the doctor. "The trouble was that, being dissatisfied, and lacking courage to verify or disprove your feeling of personal inefficiency, you involuntarily took refuge in a nervous breakdown that would enable you to evade blame for the expected failure."

Which, in fact, is the way not a few nervous breakdowns in young men develop. The breakdowns are, so to speak, means of escape from a business situation that has become intolerable, either because the worker is engaged in uncongenial work, or because, rightly or wrongly, he believes himself to be unfitted for the work he has chosen.

As remarked not long ago by a New York physician, Dr. Louis Casamajor, who has had much experience with the nervously collapsed, there are three principal types of victims of what may be called "business neurosis." These types are the inadequate, the dissatisfied, the generally maladjusted.

When business workers belonging in any one of these types go to pieces nervously they usually do so because they lack one thing—ability to face reality manfully. Failing to progress in business as they had hoped to progress, they do not calmly sit down and ask themselves, "Why?" They seek, rather, to hide from themselves, or excuse to themselves, the fact of failure.

This, though they know it not, is the provoking cause of their breakdown. Nor can they hope to recover from it until they find work that is more congenial to them, adopt a new attitude to the work they are already doing, or are trained, or train themselves, to meet with greater firmness the perplexities and stresses of business life.

Then, no longer feeling any need for a "flight from reality," they regain nerve control and remain nervously well balanced.

WILLIAM RUSSELL AT THE GLENDALE

William Russell, the Fox star, says that ever since he was compelled to drink water from the radiator of his automobile several months ago, when he was lost in the Mojave desert, he has been fuller than ever of pep and energy.

Jack Dillon, who directed Russell in "The Roof Tree," now playing at the Glendale theatre tonight only, declares that while the latest picture was being made the stalwart star made him think of a spirited horse with the bit in his mouth, trying to outrun everything in sight.

SCHOOL HOUSE PLANING COURSE

John Joseph Donovan, an architect of the bay district who has distinguished himself in the designing of some of the show places of Oakland and vicinity, will give a course entitled "The Practical Side of Schoolhouse planning" during the summer session of the University of California.

This course is intended for school executives, superitnendents, principals, teachers preparing for administrative work and others interested in the problems of school building. Lectures, discussions, stereopticon views and films of the important details of schol building will be used in presenting the problems.

The Oakland auditorium and the Oakland technical high school are among the well-known buildings erected under the direction of Mr. Donovan. His book on School Architecture which has been recently published is receiving much favorable comment.

UNIVERSITY MAN IS GOLD MEDALIST

Waldo Westwater, of Mt. Hamilton received the University of California gold medal for 1922 as the most distinguished student. in the present graduating class of the sttae university. President David P. Barrows presented the gold medal to the most brilliant student at the fifty-ninth commencement exercises of the state university.

Westwater entered the University from College Park Academy of San Jose during the period that the student army training corps was a part of the state institution. Throughout hfis whole career he has made a remarkable scholastic record, seventy-five percent of his work being of first section grade. His major study has been in chemistry, and he graduated with highest honors in the department of chemistry receiving the degree of bachelor of science.

FARMERS WANT STUDENT HELPERS

The demand from California farmers and ranchmen for agricultural college students to help in taking care of this year's crops exceeds the supply, according to E. C. Voorhies, assistant to the dean of the University of California College of Agriculture. Not fewer than 1,000 students have been sent out this spring to work on farms and ranches and two or three hundred more could be placed if they were available.

This increased demand for college students on the farm is probably due to the growth of the agricultural industry in the state and to a growing appreciation of the superior type of service which the student trained in agriculture is able to render. The University of California College of Agriculture anticipates a greatly increased enrollment this fall as a result of the widespread interest in agriculture as a profession among the young people of the state.

YOUNG DANE TO VISIT UNIVERSITY

The forestry division of the University of California received a call recently from a young Danish forester who is on a tour of the United States and other principal countries of the world. The young man is traveling in the interest of the International Committee of Danish students, a unique organization formed by students of the University of Copenhagen in 1919 with the aim of establishing relations between the Danish intellectual world and that of other great cultured nations.

The committee has a number of methods of attaining this end, among them being the distribution each year of ten free trips in foreign countries. The Danish and the French governments have demonstrated their interest in the project by extending financial aid to the committee.
